Thompson 'Cutting Bennett's Throat'

Socreds Feel Heat in House Squeaker

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The Socreds Tuesday again snatched the minority government from defeat after the Conservative fielded a fantastic 97-out-of-97 to try to squeeze it out of office.

It was one of the most spectacular finishes in parliamentary history.

Only four MPs were absent from the Commons for the vote on a Tory non-confidence motion that would have raised the old age pension from seventy-five dollars to one hundred dollars a month.

While barely recovered from the close vote, 134 to 126, the minority government today looks down the barrel at another Tory non-confidence vote.

The Tories, at their caucus today, were expected to agree to move that the minority government be turned out for failing to give good clean government to Canadians.

In addition, before the throne speech debate ends on Monday, two other non-confidence motions by splinter parties are possible under the rules.

Then the Commons moves to a supply motion debate, which also gives the opposition opportunity to move non-confidence.

Last night, Socred leader Robert Thompson was defending the action of his group in saving the government in non-confidence votes.

On Friday, his group voted with the government against a

New Democrat motion that would have raised pensions. The vote: 126 to 117.

Then, the gap was nine. Last night, it was eight. The overall vote was larger. If the government had not got wind during

Death Penalty Next for Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons debate on capital punishment will be the first order of business after completion of the throne speech debate and a supply motion, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

Replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson agreed that the debate should be held without delay. It would be up to house leaders of the various parties to work out the procedure.

Gangster's Swan Song

'Moroccans Paid For Kidnapping'

PARIS (Reuters) — French gangster Georges Figon, 38, a key figure in the Mehdi Ben Barka affair, told his lawyer before he died that Moroccan authorities paid 1,000,000 francs ($275,000) for the kidnapping of the Moroccan opposition leader, it was announced Tuesday night.

A communique issued by the lawyer Pierre Lemarchand, a Gaullist deputy, had disclosed this giving evidence Tuesday to the judge investigating the scandal.

Figon's body was found in his apartment last week. Police said he killed himself as they came to arrest him.

NOT SEEN SINCE

Ben Barka has not been seen since he was kidnapped on a Paris street Oct. 23 by three men—a French counter-espionage agent and two police officials.

The communique said Figon called on Lemarchand—not as his lawyer, but as a politician—to ask protection Nov. 2.

Figon told him then what he knew of the affair. Lemarchand said in evidence before Judge Louis Zolinger.

NEW NOTHING

The lawyer claimed he knew nothing of the kidnap plot before that date.

He said Figon told him Antoine Lopez, the counter-espionage agent who also was an official of Air France, had been preparing the operation against Ben Barka for several months.

A first kidnap attempt failed in Cairo, but Oct. 29 Figon said he lured Ben Barka to the spot on the Left Bank where it took place, Lemarchand reported.

TOLD POLICE

At Monday's interrogation justice sources said Lemarchand told the judge he had passed on information he learned from Figon to Supt. Jean Caille of police intelligence and to Marcel Leroy, a high official in the French counter-espionage service, now suspended.

'Mistress' Testifies At Poison Trial

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Mrs. Wanda Ostby, attractive 30-year-old housewife who claims to have been Dr. Robert Boehme's mistress since 1963, testified in Judge Hardyn B. Soule's court here Tuesday the doctor told her he would "take care of Mary."

Mrs. Ostby, mother of three children who is divorcing her husband, said she and Dr. Boehme had been intimate on numerous occasions.

ASSAULT CHARGE

Dr. Boehme is on trial on a first-degree assault charge, accused of attempting to kill his wife Mary, 33, while she was hospitalized for injuries received from a falling plank in the family bathroom.

Mrs. Ostby's testimony caused Dr. Boehme to stand and shout: "your honor, this witness is committing perjury."

Judge Soule, who had removed Mary Boehme from the courtroom for the remainder of the trial for a similar outburst, warned Boehme it is possible for the judge to expell a defendant from a case if he interferes with orderly procedure.

Judge Soule who had watched her shake her head and smile wryly during McCutcheon's statement, ordered her removed.

Earlier defence attorney Frank Peters had won a fight for the right to keep her at her husband's side throughout the trial, even though McCutcheon argued "even Perry Mason wouldn't do that."

Jet Crash Riddle 'Frozen'

CHAMONIX, France (Reuters) — Alpine rescue squads Tuesday night called off until spring their search for the bodies of 117 passengers and crew of an Air India jetliner that crashed on Mont Blanc Monday.

The decision, announced by police, represented a major setback in the search for an explanation of the plane's mysterious crash into the mountain when it should have been flying high and safe into Geneva, Switzerland, 45 miles away.

Car troubles spanned world Tuesday. Truck on Tennessee freeway unknowingly spilled scrap tin along highway—so 25 following cars here alone paused to fix resulting flats. ## UN Avoids Viet Nam

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg was reported to have told a group of congressmen Tuesday he has consulted United Nations leaders repeatedly on the possibility of Security Council intervention in the Viet Nam problem, but has found sentiment solidly against such a move.

Peace Overture Denied

CAIRO (AP)—Informed sources here said Tuesday the United States sent a new peace offer to Hanoi through the United Arab Republic and will, meanwhile, hold off bombing North Viet Nam, but the U.S. embassy denied it.

Officials in Washington expressed surprise over the report and also denied knowledge of any fresh overtures.

Chinese Rocketing Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prof. Ralph L. Powell, a specialist on China, said Tuesday that by 1970, or sooner, Peking will have developed a hydrogen bomb and a limited capability to deliver nuclear warheads by medium-range missiles.

And U.S. Preparing for It

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has described planned U.S. strategic offensive forces as far more than adequate to cope with any Soviet first strike. The strategic missile force recommended for the 1967-71 period will provide "substantially more force than is required for an assured destruction capability against both the Soviet Union and Communist China," he said Tuesday.

Bombing Villages Part of War

CAMPBELL RIVER—"Going to war is like going to work," said Clifford Mitchell.

"We started flying combat missions at 6 a.m. and continued until 7 o'clock at night."

Warrior Officer Mitchell, a U.S. Army helicopter pilot, has just completed a year of Viet Nam duty.

He is spending 45-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell, at Hill Island resort and marina 10 miles east of Campbell River.

He was shot down six times. "If one of our machines went down, the others either got them out or waited till help arrived.

"The Viet Cong take few prisoners."

The 22-year-old pilot was posted with the 121 Airborne Company, based at Soc Trang, about 90 miles south of Saigon.

He piloted a Viking-type turbo-prop helicopter. These machines, with their four-man crews, prowled the skies over jungle in groups of five.

Mr. Mitchell's group was nicknamed the Blue Diamond Devils, because of the large black and blue diamond painted on the front of each helicopter.

His last crash was from an altitude of 2,000 feet, when an anti-aircraft shell knocked off his rear motor.

"It was a controlled crash," he said.

After his companions got him out, he was sent to hospital with a minor leg injury.

He holds two Purple Hearts for wounds, the U.S. Air Medal with 23 oak leaf clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, and Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

The Cross of Gallantry was presented to him by General Khanh, former boss of South Viet Nam.

What about U.S. policy of wiping out whole villages?

"It's all part of the war," he said.

"These people shelter the Viet Cong. The peasant who works in a rice paddy during the day is the Viet Cong infiltrator who attacks villages and American installations by night."

He said the Viet Nam demonstrators in the U.S. and other countries do not "fully understand" the reasons for the war.

"Our troops would like to see the U.S. either clean up the situation or pull out."

"The demonstrators are a small minority."

"They don't have the backbone to fight in Viet Nam."

"We are there to stop the flow of Communism."

He said the war in Viet Nam is just beginning.

He is not likely to be sent back to Viet Nam for some time. He leaves soon for Fort Walters in Texas, to take up duties as a flying instructor. Mr. Mitchell hopes to take up architecture and live and work in Canada.

Socreds Under Pressure

the day that the Tories were trying to field every member of their group and whipped in its own members, the vote could have been dangerously close.

Socred leader Thompson is feeling the pressure.

In the Commons, Tory Alvin Hamilton accused him of "cutting the throat" of Socred Premier Manning of Alberta and Bennett of British Columbia who had spoken out for higher pensions.

The issue, said Hamilton, was whether 1,000,000 Canadians who had borne the brunt of bringing the nation from the pioneer stage to a rapidly growing industrial nation should have the standard of living they deserve.

"There is no other issue," Hamilton said.

In his office, later, Mr. Thompson said he had nearly 200 letters protesting his stand in the Commons.

They called him "traitor."

UPSET INTENDED

"These votes," Mr. Thompson agreed "were not votes for old age pensions. They were intended to upset the government and force an election."

"I believe the major issue is stable government and the people would not stand for another election."

TOTAL TURNOUT

"I voted against those who would upset the stability of parliament," he said.

The total turnout by the Tories, he said, was just an "attempt to fly the flag" and it wouldn't be the same when parliament faced other issues.

MAXIMUM HAY

The Tories, he added, want to make the maximum political hay out of pensions.

Hamilton

Thompson

"But some of those who boo me in the Commons, thank me in private."

Mr. Thompson was asked how he would vote if the Tories move non-confidence, based on the integrity of the government.

He replied that any doubts he had about the government's "cleaning house" had been removed by . . .

● The election, in which the Canadian people returned the Liberals.

● The obviously forced resignations of cabinet ministers.

NO BLANKS

That, he said, was his position as far as the past was concerned.

He warned that his party was not giving a "blank cheque" to the Liberals, but would cooperate to make parliament work effectively.

In last night's vote, the line-up was:

For the Tory amendment, 128, including 97 Tories, 19 New Democrats, nine Creditistes, and one Independent, Maurice Alard.

Against: 134, including 128 Liberals, five Socreds and one New Democrat, Frank Howard.

KEPT PROMISE

Later, Mr. Howard said he had split with his party in the vote because of a commitment to his constituents in B.C. not to vote against the government.

"It wasn't a case of keeping this particular government in," he said, "but maintaining more stability in parliament."

TWO SESSIONS

After the 1963 election, Mr. Howard came to parliament with a commitment not to vote against the government for two sessions.

The absentees were: One

New Democrat, who was reported ill in Toronto. One Independent, J. A. Mongrain. Two Liberals, Jack Roubicek, who is ill, and George Nixon.

HAPPY WHIP

The happiest man on Parliament Hill last night was the Tory whip, Eric Winkler, who had corralled all ninety-seven members for the vote.

He believed that the last time there had been a one-hundred per cent turnout for the party in a vote was when it was in government, over a nuclear issue.

HARD WORK

How did he do it last night? "Very simply," Winkler replied, "I worked like a dog. But I wasn't sure until we called the vote."

FLU CASES

Three western MPs arrived from the west two hours before the vote. Walter Dinwiddie, whose son is critically ill in Montreal, came from Montreal. And there were a couple of bad flu cases.

MAJOR PLANK

Was there a special purpose in massing all the troops? "This was an extremely important vote," he replied.

"This was one of our major election planks, to raise the pensions for the older people."

All the parties are caucusing here today.

THREE ISSUES

The Tories, last week, discussed three major subjects for non-confidence assaults on the government:

1. Pensions.

2. Failure to give clean, honest government.

3. Failure to protect Canada from economic policies made in the U.S.

THIRDS SPEECH

"No. 2" is expected to figure in today's non-confidence motion and, in time, "No. 3" will be put to the vote, too.

The eight-day throne speech enters its fifth day today. So far, it has produced some highly emotional pitches for pensions.

PLEDGE GIVEN

Last night, Tory Alvin Hamilton said even a pension of one hundred dollars does not reach the minimum level that is needed.

He called on all those who had given pledges to their constituents to raise pensions to vote for the motion and throw the government out of office.

DEMORAL SOULS

"This," he said, "will happen if these men honor their pledge to the constituents and to their immortal souls."

"You do not make pledges such as this to the senior citizens of your country without fighting tooth and nail to honor them."

PENSIONS

"It is the cruelest form of chicanery if men ask people to vote for them on the basis of supporting a pension of $100 a month, some into this House and then vote against it."

He singled out a Liberal, James E. Brown of Brantford, Ont., who, he claimed, said during the election campaign:

VOTED AGAINST

"I am supporting an increase in the state rate old age pension to $100 a month."

Last night, Mr. Brown voted against the increase.

ROLL CALL

Hamilton appealed: "I am asking each honorable member who doesn't want to be called a rubber stamp and who will not betray his principles and convictions to meet the roll call up yonder."

"But their statements made in this House make it very difficult for them to meet that final roll call up yonder."

Fire Damages

Apartment

VANCOUVER (CP) — One seventh-floor suite and a number of hallways were damaged by fire in an 18-floor apartment building in the West End.

Fountain's Variance Deliberate

It's not uneven pressure which causes the flow of water to fluctuate in the fountain in Centennial Square these days. It's that way by design.

A wind control device to govern the height to which the fountain jets rise was installed this week, and officials say it is working very well.

WORKED BY WIND

Located on the top of the adjacent parking building is a governor which is affected by wind pressure and by heat.

When the wind reaches a certain pressure, the pump which governs the flow of water to the fountain automatically cuts down or out.

Object, of course, is to prevent the water from being wind-blown outside the perimeter of the fountain and over whoever happens to be nearby.

DIVIDEND

A dividend since installation of the control is that the centre and dominant jet of water now rises, when the air is calm, 35 or 40 feet higher than the top of the tallest of the three monoliths in the centre of the fountain.

Death Decreed

In Absentia

TEHRAN (AP) — Thirteen men accused of setting up a Communist party were sentenced to death by firing squad. The Communist party is banned in Iran. A woman was sentenced in absentia to life in prison on similar charges. Women are exempt from the death penalty.

Australian Aid

Spurs Protest

LONDON (Reuters) — Australian students at London University demonstrated in front of Australia House against the sending of Australian troops to Viet Nam.

They handed out the text of protest to the Australian high commissioner signed by a number of Australian professors, students, painters, composers, and journalists.

'Extend Pause'

might have negotiations as a means of establishing peace in this particular area," he said.

"Whatever we may think of the course of conduct of our neighbor, the fact is that no one can sincerely suggest that the United States has not sought to carry out negotiations," he added.

LEADERS KILLED

Mr. Martin said the war must be viewed from three perspectives: the internal dissent in South Viet Nam, the outside aggression against South Viet Nam; the importance of the surrounding countries.

He said terrorist groups have continually killed the teachers, administrators, and health officials in South Viet Nam, making it difficult to establish a strong government.

"We would be entirely mistaken in regard to the Viet Cong as embodying a consensus of dissent in Viet Nam. . . . Certainly there is nothing to suggest that there is any basis in the claim of the Viet Cong to be the sole legitimate representative of the people of South Viet Nam," he said.

NEW TERRORISM

Then he detailed for the first time, aggression and terrorist activities in nations close to Viet Nam.

He pointed out that Laos is now "at all intents and purposes partitioned."

"The part that is under Pathet Lao control is being freely used for the movement of men and materials from North to South Viet Nam. Members of the armed forces of North Viet Nam have been engaged in open attacks against the armed forces of the royal government of Laos."

"In northeastern and southern Thailand there are the beginnings of the same kind of terror which marked the first phase of insurgency in South Viet Nam."

OVERTHROW AIM

He said the "Thai patriotic front" is operating from Peking. "It has within the past several weeks been joined by a new clandestine organization, the National Liberation League and army of Malaysia which is dedicated to the overthrow by revolutionary means of the government of Malaysia," he said.

"Are we, then, seriously to assume that all these movements are coming into being because the legitimate channels of local dissent in these countries have been closed?"

PART OF PATTERN

"Or is this part of the pattern of permanent revolution which is being propagated in some quarters?" he asked.

"Can we ignore the challenge of aggression of these Communist liberation fronts in Asia?"

Mr. Martin agreed with NDP leader Douglas that the United Nations had been "ignored" in its efforts to spark negotiations.

"It is clear that China would regard the secretary general (U Thant), I regret to say, as persona non grata," he said. He hoped that U Thant would continue to look for ways to promote negotiation.

PEACE, NOT WAR

He repeated that Canada would be prepared to participate in peacekeeping forces once a settlement had been agreed upon.

But he stressed that under no circumstances will Canadian troops be sent to Viet Nam to participate in the war.

He said Canadian work on the International Control Commission is becoming increasingly frustrating. But he felt that the commission is still important for three reasons:

OBJECTIVE FACTS

The commission, he said, still symbolizes the validity of the Geneva agreements upon which any settlement will likely be based. It can still bring "objective facts" to the situation, and it could play a part in a settlement.

He rejected "without hesitation" that Canada's role with India and Poland on the commission has not been objective.

He said the Canadian government is prepared to devote further "substantial resources to the development of Southeast Asia."

FRAMEWORK

"I look towards this whole field of regional development as providing a framework within which South and North Viet Nam might be able to establish a basis for mutual acceptance and co-operation," he said. He had one distinctly hopeful note in the long address.

"I believe that our relations with the Soviet Union are now on a much firmer foundation. I believe the threat of conflict between the Soviet Union and the West has very considerably receded."

In Ecuador

Rough Play Means Jail

QUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (Reuters) — The touring Argentine soccer team Velez Sarsfield headed for Costa Rica Monday — after spending six hours in jail for alleged rough play.

Police took the Argentine players off to the local lockup after a match Sunday in which Ecuador's top team, Emelec, defeated the visitors 2-0.

The Emelec players complained that the Argentines went for them rather than the ball. The police took the field on the orders of the local sports commission.

Lack of Moisture in Eyes Can Cause Keratitis Sicca

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have keratitis sicca. Could you tell me something about it?—G.B.

It is irritation of the eyes due to lack of enough moisture—lack of tears to lubricate them. This may be associated with a decrease in mucus secretion elsewhere, as in the mouth and nose, (as in Sjogren's disease), and it may not be easy or possible to correct the problem.

However, the use of bland oil drops or "artificial tears" in the eyes will keep the membranes moist and comfortable.

Mrs. V.P.: I can't go so far as to say that infectious mononucleosis never recurs, but it usually doesn't.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a law that child must be four years old before he can have his tonsils out?—T.K.

No, certainly not. But there's plenty of common sense that says tonsils shouldn't be removed unless they need it.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband claims there are vitamins in mushrooms but I disagree—MRS. P.B.

You're mistaken. Mushrooms, while not particularly high in calories, have very real food value, and some vitamins—a modest amount of Vitamin B1 and B2, a fair amount of nicotinic acid, and a little Vitamin C. They are high in potassium.

Explanation to O.O.: Cardiac-circulatory means that cardiovascular (circulatory) is widespread throughout the body.

Mossler Jury Selection

Three Women Might Vote Death Penalty

MIAMI (UPI)—Three women who said they could vote the death penalty if evidence warranted were tentatively accepted as jurors Tuesday in the murder trial of millionaire Candace Mossler and her alleged lover.

"Sometimes it has to be," said pretty blonde Penelope Jameson when asked how she felt about capital punishment.

She and Norma Traven and Jacqueline K. Purdy, an attractive brunette, were the first three women called in the week and a half long effort to seat a jury in the sensational case.

Nearly half of the more than 80 men called have been dismissed because they said they did not believe in the death penalty.

But all three of the women said they would vote a guilty verdict for handsome Melvin Lane Powers and Candy, or either one of them, if the evidence were strong enough—even though it might mean the electric chair.

Powers, 29, and his aunt, Candy, 45, are charged with first degree murder in the fatal beating and stabbing of her 69-year-old millionaire husband, Jacques Mossler, on June 30, 1964. The state says Candy and Powers were lovers and wanted Mossler out of the way.

The appearance of the women lived another dull day of interrogating prospective jurors by the attorneys. When four men were rejected midway through the morning session—one by defence attorney Clyde Woody and three by the state prosecutor Richard E. Gerstein.

Gerstein questioned the new prospects first and then turned them over to the defence attorney during the afternoon session.

Annulments Alarm Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI expressed alarm Tuesday over the "shocking" increase in requests for marriage annulments by Catholics. He said he hoped the trend could be reversed.

The pontiff also mentioned the proposed reforms in the Catholic Church's Matrimonial Law but carefully refrained from spelling them out pending a report from a commission that is studying the matter.

The Pope spoke in an annual audience to prelates of the sacred Roman Rota, the church court of appeals in matrimonial cases.

The Rota has not yet released its figures for 1965 but it is known to have been handling a steadily increasing work load.

Bulk of appeals before the court are requests for annulments—declaration that a marriage was null and void from the outset because of lack of consent, impotence or other grounds. The church proclaims an annulment only after exhaustive investigation.

Responding to an address by the Dean of the Rota, Magr. Francis Brennan of Shanandoah, Pa., the Pope said he fully shared Magr. Brennan's concern over the growing number of annulment requests.

"Oh, we make our own the cry of alarm which you, Mr. Dean, raised in your enlightened speech over the shocking increase in matrimonial annulment cases," the Pope said.

"We, too, see in that phenomenon a characteristic sign of that weakened sense of the sacredness of the marriage bond which the Christian family is founded, of the precariousness of social and economic conditions in which it develops, and therefore of the danger they may threaten the solidity, the viability and the happiness of the family."

The Pope then passing mentioned the proposed reform of the church's Code of Canon Law—including marriage law—on which "a numerous and powerful commission" of Papal-appointed experts is working.

Cancer of Throat

Star Recovering After Operation

LONDON (AP)—British movie star Jack Hawkins is suffering from throat cancer, but he is reported making progress after an operation.

"His condition is satisfactory," said a spokesman at London's University Hospital, where the 55-year-old actor underwent surgery during the weekend.

Friends said Hawkins, who won international fame in The Cruel Sea, is cheerful despite discomfort. They expressed belief the operation had been a complete success.

MAKING PLANS

Hawkins' wife, Doreen, told David Lewis of the Daily Mail: "I am assured—and I believe it—that Jack will be absolutely all right. Even now when we converse with Jack writing notes to me on bits of paper, he is making plans for the future." Hawkins, whose square build and masculinity seem to typify the British Empire at its best, was cast for years as the epitome of the English officer. In 1962, after eight years of continuous movie making, throat trouble forced him to abandon plans to return to the stage.

He was pronounced cured and went on to make more movies. He has just finished co-starring with Sophia Loren in Judith.

Late Dates Given Girls

TORONTO (CP)—First-year girls in Whitney Hall at the University of Toronto may go out on dates this year as often and as late as they want, and so far the privilege has not been abused, the dean of women, Charity Grant, said. Curfews were abolished this year at the women's residence, ending the former restriction on the number and length of dates in a week.

Says Pension Expert

$35 for Whisky? It's Possible in 2011

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadians probably will be paying $35 a pound for beef, $35 a bottle for scotch and $750 for a suit by the year 2011, predicts a Vancouver pensions expert.

Alan Pierce, vice-president of William M. Mercer Ltd., told a Vancouver board of trade luncheon Monday that in 45 years time the average annual salary will be $25,000 and pensions will be $7,900 if inflation continues at its present rate of three to four per cent a year.

If the figures seem absurd it is necessary only to go to the newspaper files of 45 years ago and look at the prices then, he said.

Mr. Pierce said it is inevitable that private pension plans will become mere supplements, primarily for wage-earners in higher brackets.

"Unions will... pressure the government on pension benefits instead of employers," he said. "This will bring them into the political area more than now."

Itinerary Of Tour Released

LONDON (AP)—The government announced Tuesday the itinerary for Queen Elizabeth's month-long vacation and tour of the Caribbean next month.

Prince Philip will accompany her on island-hopping visit and then tour the North America alone to promote British tourism and industry. She will fly back to Britain.

The tour will begin in British Guiana Feb. 4 and end in Jamaica March 6.

The Itinerary: Feb. 4 British Guiana; Feb. 7, Trinidad; Feb. 10, Tobago; Feb. 11, Grenada; Feb. 12, St. Vincent; Feb. 14, Barbados; Feb. 16, St. Lucia; Feb. 18, Dominica; Feb. 19, Montserrat; Feb. 20, Antigua; Feb. 22, St. Kitts; Feb. 23, Tortola; Feb. 25, Turks and Caicos Islands; Feb. 27, Bahamas; March 3, Jamaica.

On completion of this schedule, Philip will make a speaking tour across the United States at the invitation of Variety Clubs International and attend various functions sponsored by the British Committee for Exports to the U.S.

He will visit Toronto March 20-21 and Ottawa March 22-23.

Viet Nam Ceasefire

'No UN Appeal Now'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—United Nations ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg reportedly told a bloc of 48 democratic Congressmen Tuesday that the time is not ripe for President Johnson to go before the world body to seek a ceasefire in Viet Nam.

Goldberg, who made a special trip to Washington, was said to have told about 70 Democrats privately that the administration would be willing to make an appeal to the United Nations, but that this was not "the appropriate time."

Goldberg made the trip to address 76 Democrats who wrote President Johnson last week urging him "to formally request the United Nations to seek an effective ceasefire." Nearly all the lawmakers were present at the closed session Tuesday.

Johnson replied to the Congressmen in a letter, "You can be assured that he (Goldberg) and I are firmly determined to make every possible use of the United Nations in moving toward peace, and toward an effective ceasefire as part of that purpose."

Several Congressmen who attended Tuesday's session quoted Goldberg as saying there would be difficulties in going formally to the United Nations to seek a ceasefire. One, it was reported, was that a move could be made by other nations to block the U.S. proposal.

Danger Pay

SOMETIME during the new session of Parliament the subject of capital punishment is due to come before the Commons, with a free vote enabling MPs to record their inmost convictions on the subject without the persuasion of party whips. It is a measure that should be debated sooner than later.

The present government policy of automatic commutation of the death penalty is unsatisfactory and runs counter to the decisions of the courts which act under the law of the land and deliver the sentences which that law prescribes in cases of proved homicide. It also undermines the status of the jurists concerned and so weakens respect for judicial authority.

Many earnest and weighty arguments have been voiced both for and against capital punishment, but little has been said in regard to a factor directly associated with the question and which has come to the fore with representations reported to be flooding Ottawa from penitentiary officers across the country. The latter have a direct and vital point to make—their own safety should capital punishment be abolished.

It need not be surprising that they demand "danger pay" to offset the risks they envisage if commutation of the death sentence remains not only present government policy but becomes the law of the land. As a corollary to life imprisonment and the abolition of capital punishment they fear this may give a convicted killer almost a licence to repeat such a crime. If he is destined in any case to spend his days in prison then the murder of a prison guard can add no further punishment.

Already, they point out, three penitentiary guards have lost their lives in the past four years as a result of attacks by prison inmates.

It can easily be understood therefore if they view their future as prison officers with some apprehension, and a request for extra and substantial "danger" emolument to compensate what might prove to be for them an unenviable situation. Abolition of capital punishment, if such is decreed by Parliament, will warrant appropriate measures for the security of the prison officers responsible for guarding persons found guilty of capital crimes.

Pots and Kettles

MR. PICKERSGILL'S Protocol of Punishment as described in an Ottawa Offbeat column on this page a few days ago may be seen as extending to British Columbia in the decision no longer to subsidize the construction of provincial government ferries. The story around the national capital, it will be recalled, is that this protocol provides for a reduced share of post-election goodies for parts of the country that didn't vote the right way. British Columbia didn't give the Liberals the additional seats they wanted.

Fact or fancy that the province is hence being politically punished, it is certainly not to defend Mr. Pickersgill and his apparent discrimination against the west coast in the matter of ferry subsidization to suggest that one criticism of the transport minister by Mr. Daniel Campbell, B.C.'s minister of municipal affairs, may raise a few eyebrows. In fact, there is every reason to wish Mr. Campbell success in the campaign of letter-writing he is promoting, in hopes that Vancouver Island and coastal mainland communities by their representations can induce the federal government to change its mind.

But Mr. Campbell's reference to Mr. Pickersgill's decision against construction subsidies for provincial ferries, as a "betrayal of the unanimously expressed wishes of the province," will be noted with some wry amusement in the field encompassed by his cabinet portfolio, the realm of municipal governance.

The "unanimously expressed wishes" of which he speaks were those of the legislature, and how a federal minister could "betray" them is something of a problem in semantics. However, everyone will know what he meant. The provincial assembly has been as one in wanting equal treatment with eastern Canada in federal ferry help; Mr. Pickersgill has wined the inequality.

But if this is betrayal, what is it when the Union of B.C. Municipalities, representative of all the incorporated communities of the province, passes resolutions year after year seeking more equitable provincial-municipal financial relations, and often with virtual unanimity, which get the stone-ear treatment by the government of which Mr. Campbell is part?

The things pots will say about kettles!

Confidence

IN A RECENT ADDRESS to the directors of Victoria's Armed Service Centre one of Canada's outstanding seamen, Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, discussed the meaning of morale in a military organization.

To the individual serviceman—regardless of his rank—morale is the result of a combination of many factors, the admiral said.

But, he added, these factors could all be summed up in one word: Confidence—confidence in his leadership, confidence in his training, confidence in himself, confidence in his unit and his weapons, confidence in his support from his home, and confidence in the belief that he is necessary and that his sacrifices are of benefit to his country.

By outlining this simple definition at a time when our national defence policies present such a confused picture both at home and to the outside world, Admiral Hibbard might have done a great service to Canada.

Perhaps his carefully spelled out words might cause Defence Minister Paul Hellyer to pause for a moment in his politically-oriented direction of Canada's defence program to give at least some small thought to the men behind the guns.

Not Very Useful

MR. MCINTOSH: My question to the minister is this: Has the Canadian Pacific Railway approached the government in any manner with a request that the government take over the passenger service on its lines across Canada?

Mr. Pickersgill: Not to my knowledge, sir.
Mr. McIntosh: To anyone's knowledge?
Mr. Pickersgill: I can only speak for my own knowledge.
An hon. Member: That is not much help.

Recess the Formula for Longevity

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

PARLIAMENT'S been at work a week now and, after a long silence, the Official Opposition suddenly has come alive.

For the last six weeks—more precisely, up to the start of the new session—it seemed to have been playing dead.

By design, of course. Having sat through eight Parliaments in the last 26 years, nobody had to tell that fox of old political grandpa, John Diefenbaker, that sessions of the House of Commons, the way things work out most times, almost seem started for the great and special benefit of the Opposition.

When Parliament is in recess, the government by the simple process of being able to officially announce executive decisions on this, that, and just about everything of interest on the federal front, can dominate, if not monopolize, the news from the national capital.

Usually the best any Opposition can do in squeezing a little space for itself on the front pages is to react to the news the government has made, trailing along in the unexciting role of the second-guesser.

The Opposition leader calls a press conference and sounds off in what amounts only to a postscript to the headline the prime minister already has made.

From just after the election until just before he sailed away for his short, pre-Christmas Caribbean cruise.

And say what he would, he just couldn't compete successfully with the prime minister in newspaper space and air time.

Of necessity it was strictly an Opposition-tail-to-the-government-kite sort of operation. But then when Dief, having got his breath of tropic air, returned from the land of the sea and sun, a deep and six-week-long silence fell on his office.

He would say nothing about anything.

There were things to say but he just wasn't talking.

"I'll speak my piece on that in Parliament," he would promise in answering almost every question.

"Parliament is the place for that."

So there he has been, since before Christmas, hoarding his ammunition.

For he knew from his 26 years as a House of Commons man that day in and month out, Parliament invariably gives the initiative to the Opposition.

And except for such "set piece" things as the budget, the estimates and infrequent proclamations of national importance, the opposition makes the news.

Every day of Parliament's working week, the government obligingly sets itself up for free pot-shots from the Opposition.

The heavy firing comes in the daily question period, and there, all in two worried rows, sit the members of the cabinet like ducks in a shooting gallery.

The big bombs of the last three years—the Rivard case, the race-track affair, the furniture deals and Bay Street's "ghosting" of former finance minister Walter Gordon's first budget—were exploded, as they always have been under other governments in early years, during the daily question period.

In Parliament, the government invariably finds itself on the defensive, with the whole wide field of federal action open to Opposition attack.

And there's no hiding place for even the strongest governments.

For it was the constant blasting away in the then-monthly shorter question period that Maclean's administration on the pipeline issue.

And it was the daily pound-pounding at Liberal strongman C. D. Howe that broke Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's administration on the pipeline issue.

Finally, the destruction of Dief's regime was begun with the daily Liberal opposition shelling of his rebel-riddled cabinet.

It was wise and wily old Mackenzie King who said the most successful governments are those that can keep Parliament in recess longest.

"Try to Forget..."

A Polish Gesture to the Germans

By NEAL ASCHERSON from Bonn

THIS year marks the thousandth anniversary of Polish Christianity and the thousandth anniversary of the Polish state. And with only a few weeks of this great year run, church and state have already disgraced it with a bitter quarrel.

This quarrel, as I found this month in Warsaw, is attracting far more public interest and even passion than any of its many predecessors. It concerns the letter, now famous, from the Polish Catholic Episcopate to their German colleagues, inviting them to the solemn celebrations of the anniversary this May at Czestochowa. Or, more accurately, it concerns the way the invitation was phrased.

To the astonishment of Poles and Germans, the letter—sent and published at the end of the Ecumenical Council in Rome last November—traced a tradition of friendship between the two and said, "Try to forget... we stretch out our hand to you in that forgiveness which is sealed by the council now running to its end and ask for forgiveness in our turn."

Were the Poles, who lost six million dead under Nazi occupation, to ask forgiveness from the Germans for expelling them from Silesia and East Prussia after the war? The government in Warsaw, angered at the bishops' "interference" in a matter of foreign affairs, and at the letter's assumption that Poland was granted these new territories, not as a matter of right, but as compensation for the eastern lands she lost to the Soviet Union, was quick to take advantage of shocked Catholic opinion.

In the press and in speeches, the bishops were accused of equating Nazi genocide with orderly transfer of population, of having weakened Poland's legal position in the western territories, and of having encouraged West German "revisionists" to believe that they still stood a chance of forcing the Poles out of the lost lands.

Cardinal Wyszyński, Primate of Poland, was refused a passport to go to Rome to attend the millenary celebrations opened this month by the Pope.

Ordinary people in Warsaw, I found, were angry and hostile. They were angry at the request that the Germans should forgive them, but none the less cynical about the government's motives in exploiting their feelings.

Back in West Germany where the letter astonished and touched public opinion, it was clear that the right-wing extremists and refugee organizers had been embarrassed rather than encouraged by the tone of the propaganda image of Poland as a nation united in racialist loathing of the innocent Germans, to blame for the failure to open any dialogue between the two nations. To the extent that the Bonn government has policy upon references to Polish stone wall hostility, it also was moved to re-examine its premises.

In Poland, the row has now settled into a familiar pattern: a duel conducted from tribune and pulpit by Mr. Gomulka, the Communist Party leader, and Cardinal Wyszyński. The cardinal now blames everyone, his own flock as well as the Communists, for failing to understand that "forgiveness" was meant in the spiritual sense of "forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us." There is a hint of retreat here, and Bishop Ko-miniek of Wrocław, a highly astute and diplomatic figure, has gone further and explained that there can, of course, be no forgiveness without repentance. Under the furious and defiant language used by the cardinal and Mr. Gomulka there are signs of a will to keep the quarrel within bounds. Mr. Gomulka now allows that the bishops did not actually make concessions in the frontier question ("wait a while, and we will be forgiven for everything else, too," commented the cardinal ungratefully). But he blames the bishops for accepting tamely the German Episcopate's reply, which was guarded and referred to the expelled "right to the homeland." One high official source told me that the Polish bishops had given the impression of accepting the thesis that conversations were possible only between "people and people," over the heads of governments.

The real fuel for this dispute, like the others, is the clash of two proud and confident powers who both claim the total allegiance of the Polish nation. The church, indeed, is in this respect more ambitious than the party, while Mr. Gomulka admits that "most Poles are believers and go to church" and asks only that the hierarchy should "follow a policy which is loyal to the state" if it has to express political opinions. Cardinal Wyszyński asserts on the same day that "the separation of church and state has borne bitter fruit wherever it has been carried out." His approach, not too obviously shared by some of his senior bishops, is relentlessly theocratic.

In Rome, Pope Paul is still hopefully preparing to make his own pilgrimage to Czestochowa this May and is learning Polish. The prospects of his visit look dim indeed at present, but there must be some cause for his optimism. Is it that he is now ready to offend the Germans by recognizing as permanent the Polish bishoprics in the western territories? That would certainly earn him a government invitation from Warsaw. Or is it that he hopes that the Polish letter—which he must have known about in advance—will finally produce a reconciling effect between the two nations and make that tricky recognition possible?

At the meeting in Warsaw at which Mr. Gomulka attacked the bishops, one man, editor of an independent Catholic weekly in Cracow, bravely defended the letter as a contribution to consolidating peace in Europe. In the long run, he is probably right.

The Poles have been challenged to reconsider their thoughts about modern Germany: the West Germans were both moved and alarmed. Many old prejudices crumbled. Only a few crackpots read into the letter a confession of Polish weakness on the frontier questions.

The Polish government knows, really, that its bishops are as hostile to German territorial claims as Mr. Gomulka himself, and as solid in defence of the new Oder-Neisse frontier as the state and the population. This is, in short, just another in the line of demarcation quarrels between church and state as rival authorities in a land where political liberalism, setting sharp limits to the power of both, tries to take root.

Meadames Rollin and Rosenfeld describe this ecclesiastical punch as "pretty uncontroversial" and nobody will fight them for that.

Peking's Target

'Liberation' Guns Aimed at Thailand

By JOHN STIRLING from Bangkok

FEWER people were killed by Communist rebels last year in Thailand than in a week's traffic accidents in the streets of Bangkok. The total casualties in the northeast provinces over the last 12 months are about 10 policemen and 20 others, described vaguely as "police agents." This small trouble spot in a war-racked continent would scarcely merit attention but for the fact that Peking has given notice that Thailand is the next target for "national liberation."

And although Chinese threats these days have rather a hollow ring, no one in his senses doubts Peking's capacity to cause a great deal of trouble.

In northeast Thailand, Communist agents find an almost text-book situation. Poverty is endemic, and there is a long tradition of resentment against Bangkok. Yet the Thai "liberation movement" is still in the countdown stage. When, if ever, will it take off into a full-scale armed insurgency?

Police officials in Sakon Nakhon and Nakhon Phanom provinces—the centre of the Communist effort—say that the Communist hard core consists of 1,000 armed men, 700 of whom are based on Nakhon Phanom province and the remainder on Sakon Nakhon province. They are organized into platoons of 50 men and sections of 12, and are surrounded by a human curtain of spies and couriers. The guerrillas are armed with carbines, sub-machine guns and pistols. Most of the weapons are American, and have been smuggled in from Laos.

Three men have been identified as guerrilla regional commanders—Yot Ti Sawat, 48; Jai Rajasittu, 37, and Keun Khampeuk, 30. All three are Thais, born in local villages but trained in guerrilla technique at Maraxay in the Communist zone of Laos. The senior is Yot Ti Sawat, who once managed a sugar cane co-operative in Nakhon Phanom. He now directs the militant Communist organization in Nakhon Phanom.

With a force of 500 he is in a position to strike hard at the government, which in this remote district is represented only by a handful of policemen.

For the time being Sawat's guerrillas limit themselves to the murder of police agents. He has recruited a network of spies in the villages, and the police admit that he has ample warning of their moves against him.

On the other hand, the police receive little information about the Communists. The police in Nakhon Phanom frankly admit that many village headmen are terrified of the Communists and beg the police not to enter their homes for fear of provoking reprisals.

In the last few weeks the provincial authorities in Sakon Nakhon and Nakhon Phanom have formed the impression that the Communists in both provinces are pulling out of inhabited areas and regrouping in the Phanpan hills, a low range lying between the two provinces. The hills are nature's gift to a guerrilla force—close to the river frontier with Laos, riddled with caves and covered with dense jungle. Some officials believe that the regrouping is the preliminary to an offensive in the first months of this year. There is firm evidence that the Communists' food collectors, who remain in the villages, are building up stocks as if in preparation for a long campaign.

But at the moment there is no indication that the Communists have changed their policy of avoiding a pitched battle. The latest operation against a guerrilla band in the hills, which for the first time involved the use of helicopter-borne troops, netted a total of eight or nine prisoners. Clear proof that retreat is a deliberate guerrilla policy was given a few weeks ago in Sakon Nakhon province, when a large Communist camp was raided by police. Although it was protected by a trench and 10 gun emplacements, the garrison retired without firing a shot. The camp had several planned escape routes, revealing that it was not meant to be an "iron triangle" as it would certainly have been in South Viet Nam.

The evasive tactics of Thai Communists are not necessarily dictated by Peking and Hanoi. The most important fact about them is that most of them are Thais, and when they are not Thais, they are Laotians. Neither people are famous for their pugnacity. Hard-to-hand slaughter, in particular, is regarded as un-Buddhist. This attitude is much more deeply rooted than Communism.

Does this mean that the guerrilla force in Thailand will forever remain a reluctant dragon? On the contrary, China and North Viet Nam have at hand the means to galvanize it into action at any time. The 40,000 Vietnamese refugees living in the northeast, have been almost totally controlled by Communist cadres since 1947, when they fled from North Viet Nam to avoid the fighting between the Vietnamese and the French.

Until recently, the Vietnamese have kept themselves to themselves. Their cadre leaders concentrated on their own people, keeping them in ideological trim, and training selected youths in guerrilla tactics. But now indisputable evidence has come to light that the local Vietnamese are actively helping the Thai subversives.

At the moment, their support is limited to ideological advice and supplies of food and medicine. The police in Nakhon Phanom know that Vietnamese cadres are working closely with Yot Ti Sawat.

This activation of the Vietnamese refugees may well be Peking's and Hanoi's answer to the problem of Thailand's lacklustre revolutionaries. And if the activation continues unchecked, the security forces in the northeast will be facing their gravest challenge yet.

By putting into the field only 5 per cent of the Vietnamese in the northeast, the guerrillas would be reinforced by about 2,000 men, their aggressiveness immeasurably increased.

Thai officials are reluctant to talk of their plans to meet this contingency. They point out that anything that alarms the Vietnamese refugees plays into Communist hands. However, the broad lines of policy have been indicated by the interior minister, General Phraphas Charuanathien. All the Vietnamese refugees will be screened. Those deemed loyal to Thailand and to its institutions will be given the chance to become Thai citizens; others may opt to go to South Viet Nam where Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky's regime has at last been persuaded to accept a few hand-picked refugees. The hard-core Communist cadres will be dealt with severely, in ways yet to be revealed.

In trying to separate the refugee sheep from the goat, Thai security officials face an immensely complex task. The Chai Bo (cadre leaders) will try every manoeuvre to frustrate the screening and to have their own agents classified as "white." However, no solution presents itself.

Calculated risks will have to be taken to avert the greater risk of the leadership of the Thai guerrillas.

Legal Opinion

As the new year advances, let Prof. Walter E. Fackler of the University of Chicago take the stage to be united to fore-owners.

Every public man and large organization in recent days has felt an impulse to predict economic trends of 1966. Prof. Fackler classifies them:

The Pretender, who makes use of progressive tenses—"interest rates are rising" and "construction contracts have been increasing" and ends with "in six months we shall know."

The Mystic, who makes precise predictions without explaining his reasoning.

The Artful Dodger, who avoids personal judgment and takes refuge in the predictions of "anonymous experts"—"Careful observers feel" and "others suggest that."

The Peek-a-Boo-Player, who scatters observations and related numbers around so that it is impossible to find out what his forecast really is.

The Tipster, who conveys the impression he has important inside information from sources he cannot reveal.

The Certainty Seekers, who excuse their reluctance or inability to risk an opinion by citing market uncertainty.

So, cloudily into the New Year, as ever.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

General "Chinese" Gordon and his British garrison were massacred at Khartoum 81 years ago today—in 1885—by the Mahdi Mohammed Ahmed, who was trying to throw the Egyptians and British out of the Sudan. Khartoum had been besieged for 317 days and a relief expedition arrived two days later. Gordon had earned his nickname by putting down a revolution in China some years before and was a popular hero in Britain, where a day of national mourning was ordered in his memory.

1788—Sydney, Australia, was founded as a British penal colony.

1924—An order-in-council authorized the display of the Canadian Red Ensign.

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1916—French guns destroyed German defence works west of Louvain in the Roye region; German artillery shelled Lens.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Supply Minister C. D. Howe said bombed British factories might be re-established in Canada. British troops in Italian-ruled Eritrea captured Biscia. British trawlers shot down four German aircraft.

'Triple Bouncies' Challenge Sent to Editor

NEW HAVEN — The managing editor of the Yale Daily News wants to play "regular, twosies or triple bouncies" with a Radcliffe girl.

That's what he said Monday in challenging Linda McVeigh to a game of jacks. Linda, 19, has been elected managing editor of the Harvard Crimson.

Yale editor John Rothchild said the election of the junior from Anaheim, Calif., was part of "the feminine conspiracy to undermine maleness."

HYDE, England — Anne Rowson, whose height of six feet, seven inches was cut by surgeons to about six feet, has started her first job in two years. The 20-year-old girl who spent years of embarrassment being too tall to walk in a crowd now finds she is virtually unnoticed among workers at the leather factory where she is employed.

LONDON — Mandy Rice-Davies, one of the key figures in Britain's high-life vice scandal of 1963, was named as the other woman in a divorce action brought by Baroness Viven Fitzmaurice Cerevello. The baroness, 32, was granted a divorce because of the misconduct of her husband, Baron Pierre Emil Philippe Christian Cerevello, French-born heir to a Jamaican sugar fortune.

SAN FRANCISCO — Novelist Ken Kesey, 30, and a companion, Carolyn M. Adams, 19, were indicted by a grand jury on charges of unlawful possession of marijuana. The author of One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and the young woman were arrested last week.

BELO HORIZONTE, Brazil — Pedro Vidigal, a former Roman Catholic priest, and Ruth Guerra were married in a civil ceremony in their hometown of Nova Fria near here. Dom Oscar De Oliveira, archbishop of Mariana, said the couple had been previously married in his private chapel in a religious ceremony.

INVERMERE — Frederick Grelshuber, 33-year-old miner, is in hospital here with two broken legs and other injuries suffered when a rock face fell on him at the Mountain mineral mine.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson has selected Manhattan borough president Constance Baker Motley to be a U.S. district judge. She is the first Negro woman ever chosen for such a post.

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS — An unemployed man has been charged with conveying a threat through the mails after a parcel labelled time bomb was intercepted at the post office here.

Sharp's 'No' Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — A flat "no" was Finance Minister Sharp's response Tuesday to Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) when he asked in the Commons whether action can be expected this session to increase the pensions of retired civil servants.

Burma Raked By Monsoon

RANGOON (AP) — Monsoon rains have killed at least 40 persons, left thousands homeless and destroyed more than 200,000 acres of rice in central Burma.

Damage has seriously endangered Burma's economic position for 1966. Burma normally exports about 1,800,000 tons of rice a year. This accounts for 80 per cent of the country's export earnings.

Fred Simon, 40, of Harrison Hot Springs, appeared in court and was remanded without plea to Feb. 17 for psychiatric observation.

WASHINGTON — The FBI has arrested two men who it said threatened to sabotage the Boston and Maine railroad in a $250,000 extortion plot. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said his agents arrested Donald A. Dupray, 26, and Caleb J. Rabitt, 25, on a federal complaint charging them with mailing letters to railway officials demanding $250,000 under threat of sabotaging railway facilities.

EXETER, England — A Roman Catholic nun who won a speedy $6,000 luxury car in a soup company's contest turned down the prize because of her vow of poverty. She doesn't drive. Sister Mary St. Alphe, said she might be tempted to take driving lessons if offered a more modest model.

FREDERICTON, N.B. — The announcement of threats on the life of New Brunswick's premier, Louis J. Robichaud, startled the N.B. legislature. The disclosure, made by Attorney General W. W. Meldrum, said the lives of Robichaud and his family had been threatened over a period of weeks by telephone and letters.

Hunting Conviction Upheld

Federal Act Overrides Indian Treaty Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Supreme Court Justice J. R. Cartwright said Tuesday in a minority judgment he is satisfied Parliament preserved ancient hunting and fishing rights of Indians when it passed The Indian Act.

But six others differed when they upheld imposition of a $10 fine on Calvin George, a Chipewyan Indian who shot two ducks during the closed season on the Kettle Point, Ont., Reserve. He was charged under the Migratory Birds Act.

The six justices agreed that The Indian Act refers to treaties only to preclude any interference with treaty rights by provincial legislation.

But federal legislation such as the Migratory Birds Act does apply to Indians, the justices said.

Prairies Want Trains

Rail Service Fight Going Right to Top

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Representatives of eight Prairie cities on the Canadian Pacific Railway mainline have decided to carry their fight for better passenger service to Prime Minister Pearson's doorstep.

A 2½-hour meeting of representatives of cities from Calgary to Winnipeg ended Tuesday with a vote to bypass all but the highest authorities in the battle that started with curtailment of the Dominion passenger service.

THREE POINTS — Delegates generally agreed that trying to get the Dominion, a CPR cross-Canada passenger train cancelled recently, back on the rails would be hopeless. They agreed instead to ask the prime minister and federal cabinet.

To set up a public committee under the direction of the Canadian National Railways passenger department to make an on-the-road survey of passenger and commuter requirements in communities now served by the CPR.

To restore some form of acceptable passenger service in place of the Dominion immediately.

To support actively a national rail transportation policy with public service in mind.

The CPR still operates one cross-Canada passenger train on the main line, the Canadian, but the cities say service by the Canadian is inadequate.

The George case was the second time that the Supreme Court has dealt with an infringement against the Migratory Birds Act by an Indian.

UPHELD CONVICTION — In October, 1964, it upheld the conviction of Michael Sikya, an Indian from the Northwest Territories, who shot a duck during the closed season.

Lawyers for George had argued that his case differed from Sikya's because Sikya had shot a duck away from a reserve and the treaty covering Sikya's band was signed four years after the Migratory Birds act.

The majority court decision Tuesday said there is no valid distinction between the Sikya and George cases.

Albert, N.M. (UPI) — A new Air Force jet, reconnaissance plane capable of flying more than 2,000 miles an hour exploded in flight and plunged to the ground in desolate north-eastern New Mexico, Tuesday, killing one of the two civilian test pilots aboard.

The other pilot aboard parachuted to safety. Air Force officials quickly clamped a tight security lid on the crash scene.

Both test pilots were employed by Lockheed of California Corporation. Lockheed officials said William A. Weaver, of Northridge, Calif., parachuted to safety but that James T. Zwyer, of Lancaster, Calif., was killed despite the fact he ejected from the airplane.

The officials said the plane, a four-engine craft known as the SR-71, was on a routine flight.

Victoria on Right Path In Developing Downtown

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

Victoria is following the right path in development of its downtown area, particularly in view of the fact that the city itself is the core and hub of what may be a whole regional area.

The new municipal planner and head of the city's new community development department, Geoffrey J. Greenhalgh, is busy at City Hall trying to chart a course for the future.

ARRIVED THIS WEEK

He arrived on the job only this week and has been busy arranging for staff and office space, and just getting to know people.

In order to accelerate the getting-acquainted process, a coffee party will be held Thursday at which the new department head will meet all members of city council and senior city officials.

MANCHESTER GRAD

A graduate of Manchester University in architecture and planning, Mr. Greenhalgh came here from Calgary, where he was deputy director of planning. A follower of the Walter Gruen school of planning, Mr. Greenhalgh, like his mentor, places great emphasis on the development of a city's core.

THE ONLY WAY

"It's the only way a city can remain healthy, but it must not be a leader-follower sort of thing. There must be leadership from the municipality, but nothing lasting can be achieved without the active co-operation of private investment," the planner said.

The objective, he added, was to weld the two segments into a unifying force working for the good of the city as a whole.

EYES A'BURBS, TOO

It is a fact of planning life that the core of a city could not be kept alive unless it had resident population to feed on, and this meant that attention had to be given to residential areas.

Reluctant to be specific this early in the job, Mr. Greenhalgh said that if there wasn't room enough or land enough for residential population, people would have to be stacked, even if this meant high-rise apartments.

'ALL CORE'

"Victoria, in a sense, is all core," the planner said.

Geoffrey J. Greenhalgh

"The city's political boundaries embrace the core for the whole region. We must be sure to give this our fullest attention or we could lose by default and see business people move away from the centre to the outlying areas to the detriment of the whole district."

The proper use of federal funds was important, he said. These were not "give-away" programs but embraced urban

For Rhodesia

South Africa Opens Oil Tap

CAPE TOWN (AP) — South Africa would allow oil supplies to be sent to neighboring Rhodesia, Premier Hendrik Verwoerd said Tuesday.

The South African government would not interfere if petrol renewal, which had gone far beyond the concept of replacing and retabulating slum areas. It would be part of the function of his department, Mr. Greenhalgh said, to investigate every aspect of possible federal aid.

"A fine start has been made in Victoria, and I am sure that if we can enlist the aid and interest of private capital we can put something together here that is really exciting," he said.

companies or traders wished to supply fuel to Rhodesia, he told Parliament.

SANCTIONS

Verwoerd's policy statement came as Britain made plans to tighten the screws on rebellious Rhodesia through economic sanctions. The sanctions include an oil embargo which is supported by many other countries.

But Verwoerd made it clear that South Africa would not take Rhodesia's side in the independence crisis.

NOTHING MORE

Speaking in a non-confidence debate, he said it is clearly not in South Africa's interests to be drawn into the conflict. The issue, he said, should be restricted to the parties directly concerned—Rhodesia and Britain.

This also was the attitude of the British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart when speaking before the United Nations Security Council in New York, he said.

Home For Bunnies

City Deplores Attitude

Municipal-provincial social program cost-sharing problems have been in front of a federal royal commission on taxation now in session, provincial Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Tuesday.

Commenting on a recent request by Victoria city council that a provincial royal commission be appointed to investigate the whole problem of municipal-provincial sharing, Mr. Campbell said he had no intention of suggesting any such thing to the cabinet.

NOT HEATED

City Hall reaction to the minister's statement was resigned rather than heated.

"It is what we might have expected," said Ald. Hugh Stephen, whose motion for a commission was given council approval.

NEVER CLOSED

"It is the 19th-century concept, where the son asks the father for an increase in pocket money and the father gives five cents."

Mr. Campbell said earlier that the lines of communication between province and municipalities were adequate and that they were never closed to re-evaluation.

"I wonder what Mr. Campbell would say if he requested a conference with Ottawa and was told that the lines of communication are good enough now," Mr. Stephen said.

Mayor Toome said he was disappointed that the suggestion for a full-fledged conference had been rejected.

"This would have been the democratic way to discuss this important issue. It would have had the effect of notifying the public about the matter and would, I think, have been of value to the minister and the government," he said.

Officers Elected By Goat Club

Cathie Anderson was named president of the Luxton Hill Goat Club at the club's recent election of officers.

Other officers elected at the meeting held in the home of club leader Mrs. Thomas Frankfield, 2320 Sooke Road, were: Bruce Hamilton, vice-president; Linda New, secretary; Rosmarie Payne, treasurer; Gena Gordon, club reporter.

Weekend Burglars Take Records, Coins

A thief with a taste for music stole 10 long-play records from the home of James McCartney, 2801 Blackwood, over the weekend.

Four silver dollars were also taken. Entry was gained through an insecure basement door.

About 21 silver dollars were taken from Miss L. Strohn's apartment at 668 Superior over the weekend.

The thief also took three Seattle World's Fair coins and between $3 and $4 in change.

Marriage fees at the Scottish village of Gortna Green have gone up to 35 shillings $5.25 from 14 shillings.

Young Trio Nabbed By Police

Police recovered $310 worth of goods from eight break-ins with the arrest of three juveniles Monday night.

The juveniles, aged 14, 15 and 16, appeared in juvenile court Tuesday.

One of them has also been charged with assault involving a pellet gun. A woman was shot in the head last week as she drove past the Bay Street Armory.

LOOT RECOVERED

City detectives recovered two radios, cigarettes, a lighter, batteries, three pellet guns, candy and two toy racing cars.

They have been charged with breaking into Alexander's TV, 943 Kings; Mohawk Service, Quadra and Pembroke; Fountain Confectionery, 2655 Douglas; Gordon's Sporting Goods, 1007 Hillside; CNIB stand at Legislative Building; Thunderbird Park workshop; Ben Hill's Sports Shop, 1815 Douglas; Haultain Fish and Chips, 1120 Haultain.

Truscott Elected

Newly elected president of the Air Force Officers Association of Vancouver Island is Air Commodore Gordon G. Truscott.

Other officers are N. E. Horton and I. J. Sankey, vice-presidents; R. M. Shepherd, secretary; H. L. Woolson, treasurer; and Gray Campbell and H. Vincent, executive members.

First president of the association, Archie Smith officiated at installation ceremonies that marked its 20th anniversary.

City Route Rathie Aim For Highway

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Bill Rathie will meet with two federal cabinet ministers in a bid to have the federal government re-route the Trans-Canada Highway through the city.

Civic officials have stated there would be considerable savings if the highway is routed to run over a new First Narrows Inlet crossing instead of at Second Narrows as at present.

Mayor Rathie will be in Eastern Canada this week for meetings of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities. He expects to go to Ottawa Friday to meet on the highway question with federal ministers.

Doomed By Your Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. ## Strong Cast Balances Spring Thaw

By E. D. WARD HARRIS

The return of Spring Thaw, which last night opened its umpteenth cross-country tour at the McPherson, proved two things:

- Canadians are hungry for Canadian entertainment, and
- They want to laugh.

Last night's show was a little fattened round the edges, but it didn't seem to matter. The large audience had come determined to enjoy itself and, nothing was going to prevent it.

The cast, despite its many new faces, was welcomed as old friends and responded by putting everything it had into the performance.

In this edition, politics and sentiment have been replaced by social commentary and Entertainment with a capital E. The result is a fast-paced show packed with laughs.

EVEN BALANCE

As usual, Spring Thaw consists of a bewildering number of short sketches, some so fast that the audience barely has time to catch its breath before the next turn.

This type of entertainment is only satisfying if there are no "passengers" in the cast, and this cast was astonishingly evenly balanced.

All were good, but some were better than others. Easily the best for my money was the versatile and engagingly personable Dean Regan.

Whether he was dancing, being a beatnik, an art critic, a hockey player or a French-Canadian separatist, his polish forced one to focus attention on him at all times.

BALLET DANCE

Of the girls—all of whom were good and played to the hilt—newcomer Robin Beard (only two months in Canada from her native Australia) appealed to me for that little something extra.

The extra was her considerable talent as a comedienne. Her ballet dance was gorgeously funny. Everything she did—and she does everything—was done with professional verve.

SLICK SHOW

It seems unfair to single out these two and yet I do so because they managed to outshine a shining, talented and thoroughly likeable company.

A practised eye picked out many things which should have been tidied up at dress rehearsal, but on the whole it was a slick, engaging show eminently entitled to the hearty applause it received.

LYRICS DROWNED

The applause would have been even stronger if the three-piece orchestra hadn't managed to drown some of the dialogue and many of the lyrics.

Anyway, let's be grateful. We had lots of laughs, and in this type of show (which repeats to-night), who can ask for anything more?

For Movie Role

Beauty Becomes Savage Shrew

By CHARLES CHAMPLIN

HOLLYWOOD (LAT) — The facial lines are unkindly and uncommonly harsh. Circles of awful experience hollow the famous violet eyes. A thicket of gray runs through the disheveled hair. The make-up seems to have been trowelled on in a despairing rage. She is overweight. She looks a ruin, and yet, like the fragments of Babylon, she suggests still the pride and the glories that were.

She is, at second or third glance, Elizabeth Taylor, an unfamiliar Liz thrust totally into the character of Martha, the savagely shrewish wife in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? the Warner Bros. film version of Edward Albee's brilliant play, which director Mike Nichols is now helping to edit into final form.

AN 'ANTI-HERO'

While the spectacle of glamorous stars deliberately abusing themselves for the purpose of a role is hardly without precedent, the conversion of Elizabeth Taylor into a 45-year-old, lurching along the razor-edge between sanity and madness is on an heroic (or anti-heroic) scale.

She went at the transformation with deep seriousness. Nichols suggested, rather than commanded, that she ought to gain weight. Elizabeth ate herself silly, and blew herself up to the proportions that astonished viewers of the recent Sammy Davis television special.

Beyond that, says Nichols, "she suggested that the mascara should run in a certain way. She suggested the black smudges under her eyes, and said that that's the way it looked when make-up is put on carelessly. She suggested a particular blouse to wear because she knew it would ride up and make her look middle-aged."

She worked carefully with Gordon Bau, the studio's chief make-up man, on the cosmology that wrote a decade of excess onto her features.

'WITHOUT VANITY'

"She did it all," Nichols says, "without vanity and, I must say, with great gusto. I was and am deeply impressed."

Less impressed was the original cinematographer on the film. After a lifetime devoted to making lovely actresses look lovely, he found himself unable to go against all his instincts and make one look bloated and unattractive. He left the picture.

INTENSE DEDICATION

For everyone, it was a time of intense dedication. "We all got possessed by the picture," says Nichols. "The Burtons told me they talked about nothing else when they got home."

Albee's George and Martha, the college professor and his wife, must rank as two of the most demanding parts written in this generation.

Dinah Plays Games

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Dinah Shore plays one of the most fascinating games in show business every time she walks on stage—the cat-and-mouse contest with her audience.

Some performers stroll onto a night club floor and do an act with take-it-or-leave-it indifference.

Not Dinah. She wants the patrons' undivided attention for a full hour.

This week Dinah opens at New York's Persian Room, her first visit to big town in more than a decade. And after years on television she is concerned about pleasing the audience without the benefit of camera.

"It's the true test of an entertainer," she said shortly before embarking for Manhattan. "It's exhilarating, exhausting and depressing. You have to entertain people who are paying to hear you. You don't wing it. There's no respite. No one to blame if things go wrong.

"You must build the show from the ground up, find a rapport with the customers and keep it.

"You can tell in the middle of a show if you've lost it."

Dinah is particularly excited about appearing in New York where she believes the crowds are more sophisticated, hip if you will, than in the rest of the country.

"I can experiment with new songs and sounds in New York," she explained, "and not rely too much on the old standards."

"The secret is to remain loose and not press in your contest with the audience. There is a mutual feeling that has to spring up, even if you're not in good voice. It's different every night, every hour, every minute of a performance."

"In television I had guests, introductions, dialogue, scenery and fancy dance routines to keep the pace going. On stage I have to depend on myself to win and hold that audience."

Medicare Has Pains

Electronic 'Idiot' Needs Extra Training

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

British Columbia's seven-month-old mini-medicaid infant — the B.C. Medical Plan — is having so many growing pains that 70 people and an electronic computer can barely meet its needs.

This burgeoning giant which now provides medical coverage for an estimated 194,000 British Columbians is tending in the ground floor offices of the old Mc and Mc building at the corner of Government and Johnson Streets.

The work load has grown so fast that there were 15,000 doctors' bills in November and 30,000 in December. This month, some 41,000 bills filed in November are being processed, and there will be 47,000 by February.

And an electronic computer which is the backbone of the operation has turned out to be a "high-speed idiot" which will need many months' more training to do all of the mental job for which it is being leased, at the rate of $8,500 a month.

BUSY HOURS

One of the executives has racked up 800 hours of overtime since the "repaid medical care plan—B.C.'s answer to medicare—became effective last Sept. 1.

Geoffrey Stewart, president of the B.C. Medical Plan, says, "We are enthusiastic with what has been accomplished during such a short period of time."

ACCEPTED JOB

Executive manager of the plan is Alan Brown, a 42-year-old University of British Columbia graduate who gave up his job as assistant secretary-treasurer of the MSA medical plan in Vancouver, to accept the post here.

The computer, with its main brain and banks of programmed magnetic tape machines, a punch card unit and printer which can hammer out 600 lines of type a minute when running at top speed, is a marvelous machine.

REPTITION

But it is currently running at a speed which requires 11 hours to print the 30,000 bills which have to be mailed out this month to subscribers.

"A lot of people call the computer a high-speed idiot. You have to be careful what you tell it to do because it will keep doing the same thing over and over again," Mr. Brown said.

PUNCH CARDS

Don Hayward, data processing manager, said his biggest problem has been getting all the incoming names, addresses and statistics recorded on punch cards and the 2,400-foot magnetic tapes which hold 552 characters per inch.

"We haven't had time to get it all organized on tape the way we want to, because from July 15 through November we had to create files and records for 181,000 people," said Mr. Brown.

OWN LANGUAGE

Ray Peters, program manager, is the man who holds the vital job of telling the machine what to do — he has to talk the computer's own language.

The records search turns up 150 to 200 claims a month which are not covered, said Mrs. Bateman. Often this is because the patients gave the wrong identification numbers to the nurse on duty, or because they had failed to make their regular payments.

NO NUMBERS

Jack Whittaker, enrolment and accounting manager, said his biggest problem is people who mail correspondence or payments without quoting their identification numbers.

Improperly filled-in application forms are the second-biggest headache.

The non-profit medical plan is incorporated under the Societies Act, but the provincial government pays between 25 and 50 per cent of some of the low income bracket subscribers' premiums.

The government also provides a stabilization fund which will cover losses in case revenue from the plan's premiums is not enough to meet its administrative and medical costs.

NDP Leader Urges

Service, Not Surplus

In an unprecedented move Tuesday, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan called upon the provincial government to include some major policy changes in its Speech from the Throne on Thursday.

It is time for "an end to innocuous, meaningless Throne Speeches," and for the government to stop piling up multi-million-dollar budgetary surpluses and start providing more services for the people, he said.

The NDP leader said he was releasing his proposals in a press conference (two days) before the opening of the legislature, so the government would have time to include them in its Throne Speech.

WIDER COVERAGE

Normally the opposition waits until later in the session to present its proposals to the government.

Mr. Strachan asked that the B.C. Medical Plan be enlarged to include every citizen in the province and that its coverage be expanded to include the cost of prescription drugs.

Health services should also be changed to provide B.C. Hospital Insurance Service coverage of ambulance service and care for the chronically ill.

NEW PROGRAMS

New legislation and programs are needed to overcome the problems of automation and there should be a complete overhaul of negotiating procedures to create increased labor-management harmony, he said.

Major changes in educational procedures are needed, along with a revision of the basic grant formula to provide more money to local school boards so that school taxes can be held in check at the local level.

CAR INSURANCE

A government-sponsored automobile accident insurance plan is needed "to put an end to the present high-cost, inadequate service provided by the private insurance companies, with its attendant discrimination, price gouging, victimization of our young people, intimidation and

leader, "that the people of B.C. have been overtaxed merely to build unnecessarily large surpluses."

JUSTIFICATION

"Continued taxation at present levels can only be justified by the provision of increased services," said Mr. Strachan.

"We are demanding that the Speech from the Throne let the people know they are to have these increased services."

Anything less than adequate legislation in these fields will mean the government is not measuring up to the urgency of the times."

The NDP leader proposed that the extra revenue which is now being used to build larger annual surpluses should be diverted to provide the increased services.

Day of Prayer

New Spirit Enters The Church

Christendom which a few years ago had an immovable Roman Catholic Church and a divided and chaotic Protestantism has been visited with a new spirit, Dean Brian Whitlow said Sunday afternoon.

"We are met here this afternoon to repent together the sins which have broken the visible unity of God's church, and to pray that He will, in His own good time, restore it to us once again."

The Anglican dean was speaking to the 1,400 who packed St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral for a Day of Prayer for Christian Unity.

PRAISES ROME

He praised "the great Church of Rome" for "vigorous and radical reforms."

"However, I want to emphasize that not only you but all of us must be ready for change and reform."

LIKE SHIPWRECK

Dean Whitlow likened the situation in the church "of not very long ago" to St. Paul's shipwrecked boat: "The fore-front stuck fast and remained immovable, but the hinder part was broken up with the violence of the waves."

"It seemed to many of us," said the speaker, "that the Roman Catholic Church was indeed stuck immovable and Protestantism was breaking into smaller and smaller pieces."

He referred to the great advances of the Second Vatican Council, and asked of fellow-Protestants, "Are we ready for equally courageous reforms?"

SUGGESTS REFORMS

He suggested Protestant reforms in the name of good Scriptural order and discipline for:

Russians Off California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The Russians are expected to begin fishing off the California coast within a year, says Dr. Milner Schaefer, director of the University of California Institute of Marine Resources.

Schaefer told the assembly conservation and wildlife committee Monday that a Soviet fishing fleet entered the Gulf of California last week for the first time.

Schaefer noted that the Russians recorded another first when they dragged their nets off Washington's Cape Flattery last spring.

"And if we can't compete with them," he said, "they deserve to catch these fish."

The Russians are fishing in international waters outside the three-mile limit, he said.

Registered unemployment in Norway went up 60 per cent to a total of 14,200 in November, 1965.

● State churches with their excessive establishments giving too much authority to Caesar.

● "Confessional" churches bound hand and foot to their confessional charters, and at the mercy of their theological professors.

REFORM CHURCHES

● Reformed churches, whose ministers are subject to call or relection by their laity.

Dr. William Klempa of St. Paul's-Gorge Presbyterian Church stressed the church's mission as the reconciliation of mankind.

Dr. Klempa emphasized not only "putting our own houses in order" but also a mission to the rest of the world.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

An oversized mailbox in front of the farm office had a name painted on it—Kelso. Like most of the buildings, the mailbox wore the gray and yellow colors of Bohemia Stable, which Kelso has carried through six racing seasons for a gross return of almost $2,000,000.

"And the letters keep coming to him," said Mrs. Allair duPont, "at least 20 a day from all over the world. One woman in Poland writes Kelso from behind the Iron Curtain. We've kept up the correspondence with her well enough to know that she has written some letters that never arrived."

"He gets mail from Australia, Holland, France, everywhere. Most of them ask for a picture or a copy of the book about him. A Peace Corps group going to Thailand asked for literature so the Siamese could learn about Kelso. Would you like to meet his little sister?"

She led the way to the barn adjoining the office where a light grey filly looked out from a stall. This was Heather Noble, really a half-sister, for Kelso's sire, Your Host, is dead. Heather Noble, just turned two, is by King of Tudors from Kelso's dam, Maid of Flight. Another half-sister, a yearling by Bold Ruler, lives in another barn here.

The Master Bedroom

Kelso's owner entered the stall and Heather Noble lifted her head. "You know Kelso," Mrs. duPont said, "isn't that his head? Except for her color, this one is his spitting image, the only one of Maid of Flight's children who is. She's just like him in everything, disposition, manners, action."

"Where will Kelso live when he's ready?" a visitor asked. "I don't know. I guess we'll have to fix up something special for him. The royal box is down here at the end."

The royal box was unoccupied, for Kelso is training in Florida, and when the boss horse is away, no lesser creature borrows the master bedroom. His nameplate is on the door, with four big placards of the American flag, souvenirs of his three second-place finishes and one victory in the Washington, D.C., International at Laurel.

To cosset his precious foal, Kelso's boudoir is floored with Tartan, the expensive synthetic which paves the Meadows. Del Miller's all-weather harness track at Washington, Pa. There is also a posted reminder for the blacksmith, warning him to use only a file on Kelso's hoofs and never risk cutting too deeply with nippers.

Day After Tomorrow

Kelso would have made his fifth International start last November and probably could have galloped except for a clot that hit him in the eye in the Styrmie Handicap at Aqueduct in September, finishing his racing year.

"The eye has almost cleared up," Mrs. duPont said. "There are two tiny scars at one corner and if you look closely you see a slight difference in color. I never thought he'd come out of it with two eyes. It filled completely and then burst."

Plans for Kelso, now nine years old, are on a day-to-day basis. Carl Hanford, his trainer, reports enthusiastically on his Florida progress, but there will be no firm decision to run him until he shows he is ready to race. Mrs. duPont retired him in 1964 but brought him back because she "wanted him to be happy."

If he stays happy at Hialeah, Hanford might find a moderate race about the time of the Widener Handicap to start him toward the Gulfstream Handicap.

Leaving the pleasant meadows where the old boy will loaf out his ultimate retirement, visitors headed for nearby Elktion, once a thriving Gretna Green for impatient lovers. It is a town whose mere mention always brings a warm memory of Grantland Rice. One night Granny, doing a weekly radio program in addition to his sports column, had Babe Ruth as a guest on the show.

In response to a question, the Babe read earnestly from the script Granny had written: "Well, you know, Granny, Duke Ellington said the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton."

"Babe," Granny said afterwards, "I can understand your making it Duke Ellington. But how could you read Eton for Eton?"

"I married my first wife there," Babe said, "and I've always hated the place."

coach, replacing Bill McPeak, who was dismissed last month with a year to go on his contract.

The Redskins declined comment on Graham's contract, except to say that his salary would be somewhere between $30,000 and $50,000 and the length of the contract was not as long as the 10 years mentioned in an earlier story carried by the Washington Post.

Graham currently is coach at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy. McPeak was dismissed by Redskins President Edward Bennett Williams after his team wound up with a 6-8 record when many fans were expecting Washington to be a contender for the NFL Eastern Division title.

He had been Redskins head coach for five years and was on the first year of a two-year contract given him last year.

Hard-to-Hit Opponent Flabbergasts Chuvalo

LONDON (AP) — Eduardo Corlett, an Argentine fighting out of Rome, Tuesday night outpointed George Chuvalo of Toronto, the fourth-ranked challenger for Cassius Clay's heavyweight boxing title, in an upset victory over 10 rounds.

Corlett stepped into the ring without a rating in the world's top 10 fighters and weighing 191½ pounds against Chuvalo's 206½.

The loss damaged Chuvalo's chances for a crack at Henry Cooper's British Empire title and the world championship held by Cassius Clay.

In another fight, Cooper, 31, knocked out Hubert Hilton of Glen Cove, N.Y., with a left hook after one minute, 20 seconds of the second round in a scheduled 10-rounder.

Cooper weighed 192½ pounds and Hilton 194½ pounds.

Canucks Discover All Streaks End

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Canucks got it the other way Tuesday night as they found out again that hockey streaks cannot last forever.

Canucks, who had ended a seven-game losing streak against Victoria Cougars with a 10-3 three at home, while the Canucks had won four of their last five.

Canucks, however, didn't look like the same club which had won so impressively on Sunday and the Seals had whatever edge there was in a leithargic game in which both clubs continually froze or keed the puck.

After Gordie Veprava had squared matters before the first period ended, it took almost 35 minutes to produce the third goal.

Wayne Maxner got it in the ninth minute of the third period, hanging in a passout from Ron Schock, who had received the puck from Connolly.

The Associated Press made the first, fourth and 10th rounds even; the second, third, seventh, eighth went to Corlett; the other rounds were given to the Canadian.

McNeill Catches Schmautz

Billie McNeill didn't get a point last night, but thanks to that six-point burst against Victoria Maple Leafs last Sunday, the Vancouver Canucks centre has moved into a tie for the Western Hockey League's scoring lead.

McNeill's two goals and four assists against the Leafs gave him 19 goals and 37 assists for 56 points. Sharing that total with him is Cliff Schmautz of Portland Buckaroos, who also leads in goals scored with 29.

MARQUETTA GAINS

Milan Marquette of Victoria, who was leading the league before an injury forced him out for five games, collected a goal and four assists in the three games since his return, and now has 51 points on 22 goals and 29 points for third place.

Howie Hughes of Vancouver, enjoying his finest pro season, is again challenging Schmautz for the goal-scoring lead. His four against the Leafs give him 27, two fewer than Schmautz. Victoria's Bob Barlow is third with 25.

OUT OF SIGHT

The penalty leader, naturally, is still Howie Young of Los Angeles, almost out of sight with 148 minutes in 33 games. In three games last week he added two minors and two misconducts to his total.

Seattle's Jim McLeod tied a WHL record held by Marcel Pelletier and Bev Bentley when he made 57 stops as the Totems lost to Cleveland Barons.

Annual Tenpin Bonspiel Offers $2,000 in Cash

British Columbia's largest tenpin bowling event will offer $2,000 in cash prizes this year.

The annual Daily Colonist open tenpin bonspiel, which last year drew an entry of 96 teams and is now in its third year, will again be held at Mayfair Lanes during the Easter weekend.

Play will start on Friday morning, April 8, and continue through the following Saturday and Sunday with finals scheduled for Monday evening, April 11, followed by prize presentations and a smorgasbord for the 64 winners who will share the guaranteed $2,000 in prize money.

INCREASED HANDICAP

Only one major change was made other than the decision to give cash prizes to all winning teams. Team scratch remains at 800 but the handicap allowance has been increased from 70 to 80 per cent of the difference between 800 and the combined team average.

Teams will again consist of four bowlers — men, women or any combination of the sexes. All teams will be assured of a minimum of three matches of three games each, decided by total gross score. Four events will offer prizes to the 16 teams which reach semi-final play.

ELIGIBILITY RULE

To be eligible, bowlers must be members of the ABC or WIBC who have bowled a minimum of 21 games in sanctioned league play by Feb. 5 during the 1965-66 season. Eligible non-members of the ABC may enter and use last season's average by purchasing an unattached membership.

A small change in the bonspiel format will give an extra chance to teams losing in the quarter-finals of the "C" and "D" events.

THE FORMAT

All teams start play in the Colonist event with first-round losers in the Colonist event Mayfair ("B") event. Second-round losers in the Colonist event and first-round losers in the Mayfair event will play in Gar's Trophies ("C") event.

Ullman's 39 points, Gordie Howe with 33 points, Alex Delvecchio with 32 points, Floyd Smith with 28 points and Paul Henderson with 21 points.

TEN BEHIND

Ullman now has 51 points for the season, including 24 goals, but trails league-leading Bobby Hull of Chicago—who added two goals last week to give him 38 so far this season—by 10 points.

Hull has 30 games remaining to score 13 goals to break the record of 50 goals in a season. He now shares the record with Maurice "Rocket" Richard and Bernie "Boom Boom" Geoffrion, both former Montreal players.

MEMORIAL ARENA

Walters, 22, paced the Big Ten Conference last season with 13 kickoff returns and earned Indiana records of 18 returns for 459 yards, including 150 yards in one game.

Walters, 5'10", 187 pounds, is the first new import signed by Eskimos this year.

TWO VICTORIES

St. Louis College won two minor basketball games last night, the hantam boys downing Capitals, 32-26, and the pre-midnight boys beating Boys Club, 30-5.

GET STARTED

Then, Detroit started a seven-game winning streak with a 5-3 victory over Boston Bruins. The streak ended Dec. 15, when Toronto Maple Leafs downed the Wings 5-3.

However, statistics released by NHL headquarters yesterday show the Wings are in first place with 51 points, four more than a second-placed Montreal and Chicago.

In 25 games beginning Nov. 28, Detroit built up a record of 20 wins, four losses and one tie for 41 of a possible 50 points, scoring 100 goals and giving up 61.

FINE GOALING

Roger Crozier played in 23-23 of those games, gave up 48 goals for a 2.09 goals-against average. He also added six more shutouts and his league-

On Saturday at Esquimalt there will be 17 games, the first starting at 4:30.

While you're watching the Victoria show, officials will ask that you do a little mathematical exercise with them.

The association gets as approximately 24 hours of ice time per week and must provide one game per week for 677 boys. Each game lasts one hour.

Say that hour is from 6 to 7 a.m., as it is for many players on weekends. Take five minutes out of the hour for ice-clearing time, and 10 minutes for warming up. That leaves 45 minutes for hockey.

Each line gets three minutes

So, with warm-up skating and the actual game, each boy getting 25 minutes ice time per week. For this he gets up at a.m.

Peterson

Craigmont

Strike Probe Likely

Labor Minister Peterson issued an ultimatum Tuesday in an effort to stop a mine strike and its paralyzing effect on Merritt's economy.

Mr. Peterson said unless Craigmont Mines Ltd. and the United Steelworkers of America (USWA) settle their dispute an industrial inquiry commission will be appointed.

He said if the dispute was not resolved this week, a commission will be appointed "early next week."

CRIPPLING ECONOMY

His ultimatum followed a meeting with a delegation from the Nicola Valley town of 6,000 which complained that the strike was crippling Merritt's economy.

The delegation, headed by Hugh McGowan who owns a sporting goods store, presented a petition with 2,200 signatures which asked the government to "bring about a settlement before irreparable damage has been done to this community."

SERIOUS DISPUTE

The mine employs about 450 men who are seeking wage increases of $1 or more.

Mr. Peterson said the strike, which began last Oct. 1, is having a "serious effect" on the economy and the government considers it a "very serious dispute."

BOOM TOWN

"Merritt," he said, "was a boom town after the mine opened."

He said both parties met Monday and had scheduled another meeting for today.

"I'm not satisfied with the progress that has been made in these meetings," he said.

"Consequently I am advising the parties that unless the current meetings result in a settlement of the dispute an industrial inquiry commission will be appointed."

RETURN TO WORK

"I ask the parties to at least agree to have the mine reopened and the men return to work pending completion of hearings and recommendations of the commission."

Mr. Peterson said he hoped the disputants would "see the wisdom of settling their own dispute without outside interference."

BUSINESS LAGS

He said the inquiry recommendations are not binding, "but in most cases they have resulted in settlement."

The delegation complained that business is down 40-60 per cent and that building permits last December totalled only $200 while in 1964 they amounted to $60,350 in December.

BULL FIGHT

Mr. McGowan said the town asked for government help because it is "fed up with our place being used as a china shop for two bulls wrestling."

He said most businesses can last only another two or three months before they will go bankrupt.

About 100 mine supervisory personnel are also out of work and the delegation said since the strike began 300 other persons have been laid off from other businesses feeling the slump.

"It could mean a mass exodus of about 3,000," the delegation said.

Teachers Ease Pay Demands

HULL, Que. (CP)—The first major break in the strike by Roman Catholic high school teachers against the Outaouais Regional School Board came when the teachers association said it was willing to reduce salary demands. No details were made public.

Tawana the friendly cheetah, and friend

Chained Cheetah Trees Cheater

By BARRY JOHNSON

You have to have an eye-socket, says Al Oeming, and a cheetah on a chain is certainly that.

But a lean, full-grown cheetah off its chain, with a plump, full-grown reporter up a tree, is decidedly one up.

GAG SHOT

As soon as each of the gathering knot of spectators spotted the photographer his expression changed from consternation to understanding of the ways of the press. Just a gag shot.

True enough, but for the tree it was a what-if situation at best.

JUST BORED

The 75-pound cheetah was a personal friend of Al Oeming of the famous Alberta Game

Farm, and had been for all its 13 years. You can add to that the fact that the cat, Tawana, is at a downright decrepit age for a cheetah, had just eaten, and was bored.

Besides, Mr. Oeming was there to quiet tiny fears.

CRANKY STREAK

But, for all I knew, he could have a cranky streak. Tawana could be a Swahili word meaning The Old Dismemberer.

Was he emotionally stable? I ruminated over the possibility of the call of the wild unexpectedly gripping him as he blinked disinterestedly up.

NO SWEAT

Would his detachment crack if I lost my grip and fell on him? As it turned out, after a lifetime up that tree, there was no sweat.

The cheetah is one of 1,600 mammals on Mr. Oeming's 1,000-acre super zoo near Edmonton, now famous all over the world.

He says more than 1,000,000 persons visited the farm last year.

"And if I can accomplish everything I plan, the million figure will begin to look sick," he said.

GIANT PANDAS

The first and foremost goal is to "eclipse the entire western world" by adding a pair of giant pandas to his collection — which already includes more than 80 species of mammals, and 1,500 birds in more than 60 species.

Mr. Oeming, who is working on his PhD in zoology, is driven in his huge project by more than profit. Even though a good year brings in around $400,000, most of it goes into increasing his exhibits.

HIDE HUNTERS

"I am very concerned about the animal population generally, all over the world," he said.

"The cheetah, for example, is rapidly being driven to extinction by poachers hunting hides. And they are extremely difficult to acquire and even more difficult to breed in captivity."

WHITE RHINO

"We can only save species like this by breeding them in captivity."

He has already confounded the zoological world by keeping African game such as white rhinoceros hale and healthy outdoors in Alberta's 40-below weather. Camels on his farm have been born at 40-below, outside, with no harm, he said.

His pet Asian elephant goes out for a daily stroll.

Victorians will be able to meet Tawana, the gentle cheetah (named after a lake in Rhodesia), at Victoria High School auditorium, where Mr. Oeming will show his film, Window on the Wilds, story of the game farm, at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Firing Drill Starts Feb. 1

Firing practice will be carried out by the First Battalion of the Queen's Own Rifles using blank ammunition, thunder flares and flares starting Feb. 1.

The exercises will be carried out Feb. 1, 2, 3, and 8, 9, 10, at Albert Head, Mary Hill, and the Colwood training area.

Elements of the militia officers' qualifying course will conduct a night exercise at Albert Head Camp from 6 to 11 p.m. Feb. 9 using flares and thunder flashes.

Fowling Heads Medical Staff

Dr. J. A. Fowler was elected president and chairman of the St. Joseph's Hospital medical staff for 1966.

Other officers are Dr. G. F. Horner, vice-president; Dr. J. D. Hough, past president; Dr. G. A. May, secretary.

Mrs. A. G. Simpson, R.N., was appointed acting director of nursing.

Bitter Protest Needless

By JIM BRAHAN

The biting opposition to a proposed location of St. Chad's Home for Boys, voiced by nearby residents at Monday night's hearing in Saanich, was needless — plans for the home in Saanich had already been dropped.

St. Chad's Home committee instead had bought an 11-room house at 2024 Belmont Avenue, and had forgotten to inform council or withdraw its application to rezone the property at Hawthorne and Majestic Drive.

"The building on the property we had hoped to rezone would have been too expensive to convert into a desirable home," committee secretary A. G. F. Sutton said Tuesday.

He said the committee also realized the feelings of some of the residents in the area toward the home.

"I believe it was mistaken opposition," the secretary said. "Perhaps they thought the home would be full of delinquents."

Nothing could be further from the truth, he said.

"This is not an institution, but a large family home," he explained. "These boys are not delinquents, but are just lads who in some cases have to be taken away from broken homes, or other form of undesirable home life."

He said St. Chad's Home for Boys tries to provide the youngsters — boys from eight to 14 years — with a good home atmosphere, and some professional help if necessary.

Mr. Sutton said the home is sponsored by the Anglican Diocesan Council for Social Service, and works closely with the Victoria Family and Children's Service. He said the new home was expected to be open March 1.

Have You Seen This Weapon?

This is what the police and army are looking for—a 9 mm. Stirling automatic machine gun with bayonet and scabbard.

The gun was taken Friday night from a soldier's car parked in the Yates Street parking garage.

All police departments have been placed on the alert for the gun.

The gun is worth $119. The theft of it is a serious offence, carrying a maximum penalty of 10 years.

Machine gun ammunition can be obtained only from military sources, however.

'Marriage' Almost Certain

If there aren't too many objections, the controversial View Royal Pashadia may be united with Esquimalt.

Under the new legislation in the revised Municipal Act, unless at least 10 per cent of the residents of either the Pashadia or Esquimalt object to amalgamation, it could come in by the end of February.

Esquimalt council set the ball rolling Monday night by initiating a petition to the cabinet for amalgamation.

Esquimalt taxpayers also have already approved the move in a referendum held in the 1964 election.

The petition simply updates a previous petition, which was cancelled out when View Royal voted against becoming a township.

All that remains is for Esquimalt to advertise the notice of petition and the objection period—and wait.

'Great Demand'

Skilled Men Wanted

Skilled workers are still in demand in many parts of Canada, the manager of the Victoria office of the National Employment Service said Tuesday.

"The demand was quite high throughout 1965, and even the recent severe weather, and the resulting layoffs, have done little to reduce this need," George Davis said.

He said local employers were seeking some 27 skilled technical or professional workers that are not available in this area.

1,378 VACANCIES

"This shortage is prevalent in many parts of Canada and there are some 1,378 vacancies on file in the Victoria NES, awaiting suitable workers who are prepared to move to the location of the job," he said.

He said many qualified workers were either too well established to want to move to another area or were unable to finance the cost of moving their families.

"It is in the latter case that the new manpower mobility program is expected to facilitate the movement of workers, by providing loans or grants, so workers can move to areas where their skills are needed," the manager said.

Africa Club Plans Meet

The Habari Club, formed by former residents of Africa, will meet at 263 View Royal Avenue at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Canadians in Big Coast Exercise

Anti-Sub Abilities Tested

A large-scale anti-submarine exercise which will include two ships of Maritime Command Pacific and seven Neptune aircraft from the Comox air base will begin Friday off the west coast of Canada and the United States.

Altogether 20 ships, 100 aircraft and 10,000 personnel from the U.S. Navy, the RCN and RCAF will be taking part in Exercise Hutton Hook, which has been designed to strengthen combined capabilities in anti-submarine warfare.

Ships participating will be the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon, commanded by Cmdr. R. Carle, and the ocean escort HMCS Sussexvale, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. F. W. Piddard. They leave Monday, returning Feb. 6.

The RCAF aircraft left Tuesday and are already engaged in the exercise. They were supposed to have done a fly-past at HBC Dockyard, but plans were changed because of weather.

Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron commander Capt. W. P. Hayes, with a force made up of HMCS Yukon, Sussexvale and three ships of the U.S. Navy using the Yukon as flagship, will command the northern sector of the exercise.

The over-all exercise will be conducted by Vice-Admiral John Chew, commander of the USN's Pacific Anti-Submarine warfare force.

SECTOR CHIEFS

Canadian and USN units in the northern sector will be under command of Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, Maritime Commander Pacific with headquarters at Esquimalt.

In the southern sector, participating units will be under command of Rear Admiral John M. Taylor, commander Western Sea Frontier.

Stamp Head Re-elected

George Grant has been re-elected president of the Greater Victoria Philatelic Society.

Other members elected were Lester Small, vice-president; Vernon Richards, secretary; Michael Rice, treasurer; Romie Stocks, auctioneer; Jo Sweeney, editor, and Sid Webber, circuit manager.

Grass-Weaving Class Suggested by Pearson

A suggestion by Prime Minister Pearson that Mrs. Ida Planes of Sooke teach the art of swamp grass weaving may be taken up.

She received a letter from the prime minister Tuesday after sending hand-woven hats and a jewel box to the Pearsons.

Mrs. Planes is the only person in southern Vancouver capable of weaving the attractive patterns.

The hat sent to Mr. Pearson bore the name Mike at the front, and at the rear was depicted a Raven to represent Opposition leader Diefenbaker.

The hat was designed by Howard Jones, also of Sooke.

'No Freeze-Up For Colleges'

Education Minister Peterson said Monday there is no freeze on development of regional colleges in the province.

He denied a report in another newspaper which quoted him as saying the same day that no new colleges would be developed until the three now authorized were in operation.

Mr. Peterson said "That is absolutely untrue. I did not say that."

The education minister said the only ruling on this point is that all prospective applications must be judged by the Academic Board.

Saanich Decision

Hall to Get Steps But No Pheasants

Saanich municipal hall is going to get its front steps, but not its golden pheasants, the public works committee decided Tuesday night.

The committee agreed to recommend to council that a spiral ramp cement staircase be built at the building's Vernon Street entrance, at a cost of approximately $12,000.

It also decided to get estimates of soundproofing ceilings and walls to improve the acoustics in the two committee rooms of the municipal hall.

"It would have been nice to have a couple of pheasants trotting up and down in front of the building," said committee chairman Leslie Passmore.

However he agreed the maintenance of the birds could easily pose problems.

COLORFUL, BUT —

The committee turned down the offer of a pair of live golden pheasants to add color to the hall's Swan Lake entrance.

"It would have been nice to have a couple of pheasants trotting up and down in front of the building," said committee chairman Leslie Passmore.

However he agreed the maintenance of the birds could easily pose problems.

The new B.C. Ferries' marine route from Kelsey Bay to Prince Rupert will cover 16 pages in next month's Sunset magazine.

It was described as "the most significant magazine promotional venture ever implemented by the provincial government," by Recreation Minister Kiernan.

The big splash, announced Tuesday, will feature the route from northern Vancouver Island to Alaska, by the new ferry, Queen of Prince Rupert. It starts May 20.

PROMOTERS

Spreading the section are the B.C. government travel bureau and B.C. Ferries.

Mr. Kiernan said it will encourage visitors to make a circle tour by way of the Island, Prince Rupert, along Highway 16 to Prince George and down the Cariboo Highway to Cache Creek where they can either head to Vancouver or Okanagan and Kootenay areas.

The promotion is expected to lure an increased number of tourists.

Extra copies of the Pacific Inside Passage section will be sent to travel agents throughout the western U.S.

Here's a room with special appeal for a man. Hearty color and lustrous wormy chesnut panelling give this small apartment study a casual atmosphere without frills. Necessities for comfort include a deep, comfortable chair, an ottoman for his feet, a good reading lamp nearby, and some king-sized ashtrays. A room that's meant to be enjoyed should also have plenty of storage space for books and hobbies, like these wall shelves backed in red felt. —(Better Homes and Gardens)

Raisin Brown Bread Favorite Treat at Luncheons and Teas

For afternoon teas, for lunches, for gifts... there's nothing which quite whets the appetite like Raisin Brown Bread.

Take Flowers To Hospital

At a meeting of Esquimalt Chapter, IOOE, members heard from a former member, Mrs. June Bennetts of Ottawa, who sent a write-up of Princess Margaret's visit to a bazaar in New York.

Regent Mrs. C. A. Dodds, president, and was nominated as councillor for Provincial chapter, along with Mrs. Nellie Ormond and Mrs. A. W. Smith.

It was reported that 36 hours were spent by members at Red Cross Lodge, and Mrs. J. A. Brown and committee will take flowers to the Veterans' Hospital next month.

Annual meeting will be held in the banquet hall of Esquimalt Sports Centre, 1151 Esquimalt Road. Luncheon will be served at 12:15 p.m. followed by election of officers.

The executive will meet Jan. 31 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Dodds, 2725 Lincoln Road.

The Walk Can Be Learned

CHICAGO (AP) — Women who wiggle when they walk have no physiological reason for walking that way, says a bone specialist.

"The female walk can be put on," said Dr. Louis H. Paradise, assistant professor of orthopedics at the University of Texas' southwestern medical school in Dallas.

"It (the walk) can be learned without difficulty and easily becomes a habit," Paradise said Monday.

Paradise and his colleagues have been taking movies of people walking for several years. One of the questions they sought to answer was: Why do women wiggle when they walk?

He said that the undulating female gait most certainly does not come naturally. It's got to be learned.

AMY

Bread. It's as traditional as Little Jack Horner (and it's as popular with children in our Atomic Age as it was with young Master Horner's friends.)

Spread with butter or cream cheese, it goes happily to the most formal teas. Teamed with jam or marmalade, it makes a hearty luncheon treat. And for a sale of home-baked goods or as a gift for a shut-in friend Raisin Brown Bread is a top favorite.

This recipe makes three loaves which can be happily wrapped in clean, greased 20-ounce juice tins. It slices nicely into rounds for dainty servings.

Raisin Brown Bread keeps well, thanks to the blend of molasses, spices and raisins.

Wrap the loaves which you don't plan to use immediately in aluminum foil and store in airtight containers. Reheat in foil, prior to serving, for ten or fifteen minutes in a 350 deg. F. oven.

Hear Talk On Nutrition

The Engineers' Wives' Association met in the Flame Room of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Building.

After a short meeting, Mrs. D. F. Mason introduced the guest speaker, Miss Muriel Johnson, B.H.Sc. Miss Johnson's topic was Diet and Nutrition.

The speaker was thanked on behalf of the group by Mrs. J. Hvozdzanski. Following the talk light refreshments were served.

RAISIN BROWN BREAD

Yield — 3 loaves

One cup hot water; ¼ cup brown sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 tablespoons margarine or butter; ½ cup light molasses; ½ cup lukewarm water; 2 teaspoons granulated sugar; 2 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast; 4 cups pre-sifted all-purpose flour; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1 teaspoon all-spice; 1 cup dark seedless raisins.

Combine hot water, brown sugar, salt and margarine or butter. When mixture is melted, add molasses and cool to lukewarm.

Meanwhile measure lukewarm water into medium bowl; stir in 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm mixture and 2 cups of the flour. Beat 2 minutes with electric mixer or 300 strokes vigorously with a wooden spoon.

Add remaining flour and spices; beat with a spoon until smooth. Fold in raisins until well blended. Cover, let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Stir down.

Turn batter into 3 well-greased 20-ounce juice tins. Let rise as before until doubled in bulk, about ½ of an hour. Bake in preheated moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) for 35-40 minutes, or until done.

Cool in tins on rack for 10 minutes remove from tins and cool on racks.

DELECTABLE RAISIN BROWN BREAD

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My in-laws just left and I am sick to my stomach. Yesterday their only daughter gave birth to her fourth son and they are so unhappy you would think somebody in the family had died.

My husband and I have three fine boys (6, 4, and 2) and frankly, we're satisfied with things as they are. We wouldn't trade one of our sons for a million dollars but we wouldn't give two cents for a fourth one.

Tonight my father-in-law took me aside and said it is up to me to have a girl. He insists that the law of averages will take care of me—that out of eight grandchildren one has to be a girl. He offered to pay all medical expenses and give us $5,000 if I will have another baby.

I asked him what he would do if I had another boy. He replied, "It can't happen." I am so mixed up I am half sick. Please advise me.—EDITH

Dear Edith: It is outrageous that your in-laws regard you as a baby machine — and would stoop to bribery in an attempt to feed their sick egos. Insist that your husband silence his parents permanently.

Dear Ann Landers: My father reads your column every day and says you are a woman with a good head on your shoulders. He is a very stubborn person and will not listen to anybody, not even my mother. You are my last hope.

I am 17 and a high school senior. My father says I cannot go with Rickie any more because he is "physically unfit." Rickie was turned down by the Navy because he has a weak heart. According to my father, if I marry Rick I will have to support him for the rest of my life.

I was not attracted to Rick for physical reasons. He is the kindest and most considerate person I have ever known. I have no plans to get married until I am 21, at least. And when I marry it won't be for looks, or physique or any such nonsense. Furthermore I may not even marry Rick. I just want to go with him.

Please print my letter and your answer. — SEEN NOT HEARD

Dear Seem: Your father's reasoning is faulty. Many young men who are rejected by the services for physical defects will lead active lives and live to a ripe old age. By the same token, it is not uncommon for a man who has always been in excellent health, to suddenly develop a disabling illness or even drop dead of a heart attack.

Please tell your dad that the woman with the good head on her shoulders hopes he will reconsider.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently my husband and I invited two couples to join us in celebrating my birthday. We decided to have dinner out and go night-clubbing.

Mrs. X telephoned me and said, "Vincent had to leave town. I hope you four don't mind taking a spare woman along. I've really been looking forward for tonight."

Well, we for DID mind, and told her so. She has been very cool to us ever since. Were we wrong?—Q.T.X.

Dear Q.T.X.: Yes. You were wrong. The fifth wheel should have regretted both for herself and her husband and taken you off the hook. Since she did not, however, you should have put up with her—and graciously.

Rotary WA Executive Installed

Mrs. R. Upward, past president, installed the new executive at the annual meeting of Victoria Rotary Women's Auxiliary held in the Coach and Four restaurant. Mrs. W. D. Marshall, president, presided at the business meeting.

New officers are Mrs. M. L. Greene, president; Mrs. G. Veres, first vice-president; Mrs. John Loader, second vice-president; Mrs. Henry Thompson, secretary; and Mrs. F. P. Levins, treasurer.

Directors named for one-year term were Mrs. T. B. Campbell, Mrs. J. Carl Pendray, Mrs. M. K. Saunders and Mrs. Dennis Young. Directors for two years are Mrs. George Masters, Mrs. Walter Walsh, Mrs. J. W. Baynes and Miss Queenie Tabor.

A detailed report was given by the president listing the following donations which were given during the year: $50 to International Rotary Scholarship; nine by nine movie screen to the Senior Citizens' Building; $100; United Appeal, $100; Christmas hampers.

A coffee party was held in June and a fashion show in October.

Act Your Age Is Balmain Message

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
PARIS (AP)—Act your age was the message that Pierre Balmain had for women today in a spring collection featuring costumes that were neither too young nor too old for the pretty models who wore them. There were no sweet lavender-haired ladies with canes, as was the case in a Florence show recently. But the Balmain models did range in age from a fresh-looking, long-haired, 19-year-old to diet-conscious women old enough to have had several husbands. In a fashion season that worships the dresses and bows that baby romps in, this French couture house chose to represent the exuberance and vitality of youth with jaunty short-jacket suits banded with flashes of red, and skirts with flitting pleats.

The young showed an inch more of their pretty legs than the ladies with more birthdays. The longest skirt for day wear covered their knees. The young dared to wear hats that looked like lumpy packages, a darling debutante in a white organza ball gown covered with daisies. She was modestly decorated in high-necked date dress sometimes twirling with a jeweled bodice.

For social occasions, her older friends wore heavy crepe blouson dresses or graceful, floor-length ball gowns, now and then jewel-embroidered but more often starkly elegant. Variations of the red range, used as the sole color or as added spice to another costume, were consistent throughout the show. Vivid green and combinations of navy blue and white were also given Balmain's approval.

The young model Dorthe was given Balmain's approval. The young model Dorthe was given Balmain's approval.

Hibbard-Hay

Vancouver Wedding Of Interest Here

A wedding of wide interest took place in St. Paul's Anglican Church in Vancouver on Saturday afternoon, the principals being Shannon Rosemary Hay and Richard James Hibbard.

Rev. J. W. Ellis officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Alfred Hay of North Vancouver and the son of Rear-Admiral and Mrs. J. C. Hibbard of Victoria. The petite bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin styled on Empire lines with elbow length sleeves and banded at the hemline with Alencon lace. Her high pout veil of silk illusion was held by a coronet of pearls and crystal which had been worn by the groom's mother at her wedding. Her bridal bouquet was of white freesias.

Miss Daphne Williams was maid of honor and Miss Marion Hay was bridesmaid for her cousin.

They wore floor-length, Empire style dresses of pelican pink velvet and carried sheaf bouquets of shaded pink garnet roses to match their headpieces.

Mr. William M. Vogel was best man and Mr. M. Arthur Stilwell and Mr. George Brown showed guests to the new home. The reception was held at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club where the bride's mother chose a two piece suit of the silk in shades of pink and lilac with large pout tulle hat in the same colors. Mrs. Hibbard wore a coat of green velvet cut on classic lines over her emerald green lace dress. Her hat of emerald green and sapphire blue was of intricately worked ostrich plumes.

After a honeymoon at Cheakamus Inn on Mount Garibaldi, Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard will live at the Thunderbird Apartments in Vancouver. Going away the new Mrs. Hibbard wore a suit of cocoa brown topped with a brown velvet coat. Her jaunty hat, brimmed and turned up at the back, was of white mink.

arrangements of white Christmas roses and heather. Lighted white candles were in silver candelabra.

Mr. Douglas C. Newitt proposed the bridal toast.

WA Meets Commitment

Mrs. C. C. Warren, president of the board of directors for George Road Hospital, told the Women's auxiliary at the annual meeting in the Dominion Hotel, that the hospital was now carrying out its original commitment, that of functioning as a complete rehabilitation centre. She congratulated the group on its donation of a hydrotherapy pool, valued at $15,000, as the auxiliary's contribution toward the new wing.

In her president's report, Mrs. E. B. Owen said the group's objective of providing new H.L. beds for the hospital. In addition to the pool, the auxiliary donated $3,620 toward the bed project during the past year.

The establishment of an updated library for the hospital was another project that had been completed in 1965.

In her treasurer's report, Mrs. C. Douglas noted that the group had raised $9,040.42 during the past year.

Mrs. A. G. Hamilton reported a membership of 36 active and 19 associate members.

Other reports were given by Mobile cart and store, Mrs. H. T. Shemilt; publicity, Mrs. Douglas; Sunshine, Mrs. G. Callan (in the absence of Mrs. A. Mawer).

Mrs. Warren installed the new officers. Mrs. Owen was re-installed as president.

Other officers are: Vice-president, Mrs. E. Ash; recording secretary, Mrs. G. F. Hillard; correspondence, Mrs. T. G. Dalgell; treasurer, Mrs. Douglas; and past president, Mrs. Callan.

One-year directors are Mrs. A. Peddesden and Mrs. S. S. Smethurst. Appointed as directors for two-year terms are Mrs. Callan and Mrs. J. N. Ford. Mrs. Warren is an honorary member.

Receiving their pins and installed as new members by Mrs. Owen were Mrs. G. Leeming and Mrs. B. Wiper.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy with her children Caroline and John are on a winter sports holiday at Gstaad, Switzerland. They are staying in the private chalet of a British businessman and are pictured as they were getting ready to sleigh.—(Fednews)

Garden Notes

No Need to Kill

By M. V. CHESNUT

Over the past couple of years, I have noticed a steady increase in the number of letters from readers requesting information on how to get rid of moles in the lawn. Whether the mole population is increasing, or whether the little burrowing animals are moving into the populated centres from the wild, I wouldn't know, but hardly a week passes without a wall of anguish from some home gardener whose lawn has been riddled with mole runs.

There are a few proprietary preparations on the market especially formulated to control moles. Cyanogas, for instance, is a powder that releases the deadly cyanic acid gas when wetted; the mode of procedure is to cut an opening into a mole run, sprinkle the powder on the damp earth, then seal up the hole with sod and let the gas do its work.

There is an English product called the Topvil Fuse which works in much the same way. The fuse is ignited and placed in the mole run to release a poisonous smoke. Rodent Rocket is an American version of the Topvil fuse, while Mologen is a poisonous powder; I understand the animals get it on their feet and lick it off.

In addition to these packaged products, there are several home remedies that work with varying degrees of success. One which is often recommended in garden books is to gas out the moles with carbon monoxide by running a length of rubber hose from the car exhaust to the mole run. One lady told me she licked the mole problem by drowning the animals; she poked a hole into the run, inserted the garden hose and simply let it run for several hours.

To my mind, one of the best home remedies is to drop some calcium carbide in the runs and seal them; calcium carbide releases acetylene gas when it comes in contact with moist soil. I don't know whether this kills the moles or just drives them away, but it seems to work pretty well. I can't tell you where to buy calcium carbide—possibly a welding shop may have it, but I think a better bet would be to enlist the aid of a high school chemistry teacher, for I am pretty sure they use the stuff in lab demonstrations.

Actually, I am not at all happy over the idea of killing moles, for I cannot bring myself to regard them as pests. Moles are carnivorous; they do not eat our plants or roots, but feed exclusively on grubs and worms, thereby destroying enormous numbers of cutworms, wireworms, leatherjackets and other underground pests. Seems to me the thing to do is persuade these useful predators to move their tunneling activities from the lawn to some other part of the garden.

Several ingenious gadgets have been used to repel moles, and while I have had no personal experience with them, I pass them on for what they are worth. One American device is called a Klackety-Klack, and it should be possible for any handyman to knock one up from a few bits of wood. It is nothing but a little wooden windmill mounted on a post in the lawn. The shaft of the propeller is fitted with a small boss that strikes a wooden tongue as it rotates, making a clacking sound; this vibration is transmitted down the post and into the ground, and the moles, extremely sensitive to vibration, turn aside and go elsewhere.

In England it is reported that empty bottles half buried, with their necks sticking up, will also repel moles. The theory here is that the wind, blowing across the open mouth of a bottle, will set up vibrations which moles will detect and avoid. In England, too, a mole-repellent plant called Euphorbia lathyrus is grown; I have a few seeds of it, sent to me by a reader who claims no moles came within 50 feet of her single plant, and I will be glad to share my seeds, as long as they last, with anyone wishing to experiment along these lines.

Actually, to my mind, the best way to combat the mole problem is to de-worm the lawn with chlordane emulsion, for moles cannot exist where all the worms and grubs have been killed.

Airs His Prejudices

Purely Personal Prejudices:

Observing an intelligent woman desperately trying to win the approbation of her silly mother. I thought that nothing is more pitiful than desiring the good opinion of someone whose opinion we do not respect.

Diligence can never do in a moment; but, conversely, talent without diligence keeps squandering its capital, and soon goes bankrupt.

The conservative is governed by the dead; the radical is governed by the yet unborn; neither knows how to come to terms with the present, or how to hold yesterday and tomorrow

When God reveals himself in the Bible, all he says is: "I am." It is only man who has the presumption to say: "I have."

It is no accident that women prefer novels, while men prefer history; for men want to know what people did, while women want to know how people felt—and only the ability to put the two together can provide us with a true understanding of the human scene.

A great sorrow either deepens us, or drains us; it makes the exceptional man more compassionate and profound, and the mediocre man more bitter and banal.

If we ever pierce to the heart of scientific truth, and psychological truth, and social truth, we shall find that they all correspond to artistic truth—that the harmony and unity and beauty in a poem or a painting or a piece of music are not merely works of imagination, but prophecies and prefigurations of the ground of ultimate reality.

Love that does not alter a person for the better is not love, but some plausible (and dangerous) counterfeit; for, as St. Augustine says, "Love slays what we have been that we may be what we were not."

One of the silliest proverbs is the one that begins, "For want of a nail, a shoe was lost," and they should have

We are all aware of the few men who are living "before their time"; but for each one of these, thousands are living "after their time"—men who are intellectually and emotionally imprisoned in the past, and who mistake the walls of their ancient cell for the vault of the sky.

Many married couples separate because they quarrel incessantly; but just as many separate because they were never honest enough or courageous enough to quarrel when of a nail, a shoe was lost," and they should have

Philip's Tour All Set

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Every hour of Prince Philip's 11 days in the United States, from March 9th to the 20th, has already been planned to the last detail. The big wind-up will be in Hollywood on the night of the 14th for the gala banquet to benefit the charities sponsored by Variety International Clubs. Henry Rogers of the Hollywood public relations firm of Rogers and Cowan is still somewhat dazed by the accolade of praise given him by the London press for undertaking to "handle" the tour in this country. "The Best Thing that Has Happened to Royalty Since the Invention of the Camera," was one headline. Well, tours don't go smoothly by themselves but with a public relations expert on the spot, this one should glide. "The plan is to raise $1,000,000 in this country for children all over the world," Henry explained.

I'm not holding my breath for Frank Sinatra and Ray Stark, the Seven Arts boss, to make another movie deal. The recently finished Assault on the Queen was an assault on the nerves of everyone concerned. Frankie's Marriage on the Rocks, now in release, seems to have fundered a bit. He was good in Von Ryan's Express, and before that, High Society, but he really does much better with his records than with his films.

Someone close to Jack Warner, the last of the Hollywood tycoons, tells me it was never in the cards for Frank Sinatra to take over the studio, in spite of the expensive offices built for him on the lot. With the banishment of Bill Orr, Jack's son-in-law, and his assistant Hugh Benson, who is there to take over if and when Warner retires? The answer seems to be that he will never retire. When Warner believes that someone has made a mess of things, rightly or wrongly, he doesn't waste time. He bounces him, and this included his son as well as his son-in-law. Jack Junior and Jack Senior have not conversed for years.

The biggest feud in Hollywood seems to be with Samantha Eggar, the delicate-looking-but strong young lady from England, and writer By Bartlett who put in some work on Sam's picture with Cary Grant, Walk, Don't Run. The battles started on the Tokyo location. "She's talented," concedes Sy, but... And all his pent-up feelings are in the but. Miss Eggar has always had a mind of her own. When Willie Wyler fired her from The Collector, she decided she would get back in. And did. And that's a miracle, to make Willie change his mind.

Julie Andrews says cross her heart and hope to die if she does not return to husband Tony Walton wherever he is after she finishes her present Torn Curtain movie with Paul Newman. But not for long, of course. She has so many films and television shows to do here. I wonder whether Julie ever wonders whether it is worth it to be separated so much of the time from her husband... Shirley MacLaine gave up wondering about this years ago. She works here. Steve Parker works mostly in Japan, and they meet up when they can.

Shirley Booth is so rich from Hazel that she can afford to all. She has teeth trouble and a few other minor complaints that can make even a millionaire miserable... Shirley owns 25 per cent of the series and when it departs this year after four in the top ratings—the show fell off in this it's fifth and final year—Shirley will have so much money she will be able to live in Hollywood for the rest of her life without working. It took her a long time to like Hollywood; now she doesn't want to leave.

What a pleasant difference a year can make. The Smithers Brothers were paid $30,000 a week last year at the Flamingo in Vegas. When they appear at the Sahara in the same gambling city, they will get exactly double, $60,000. It's all that TV exposure. It beats oil for getting rich fast.

Stephen Boyd is back in Hollywood from Rome where he dubbed some dialogue for the star-studded cast of Poppye Are Also Flowers. Steve will be billed above Yul Brynner because the cast will be listed alphabetically. "No more costume pictures for me, ever," Steve assured me. He is ultra-modern in Joe Levine's movie, The Oscar.

JACK SMITH Scoffs at New Law

Poor Parkinson—He's Mad!

C. Northcote Parkinson, the author of Parkinson's law, has now published what he calls "Mrs. Parkinson's Law." He should have stood on his first law.

The British historian attempts to reduce to a neat law the forces that cause a housewife to come unglued during a typical morning at home alone, trying to cope.

Parkinson's hypothetical woman packs the children off to school, her husband off to work, burns the toast, lets the coffee boil over, breaks a rare piece of china, drives a poll-taker from the door with a skillet, hops in her car and, inevitably, wraps it around a tree.

Up to this point Parkinson's recreation of a typical housewife's morning is routine. He is even correct, I believe, in saying that at least half of his hypothetical housewife's disasters are of her own making.

She is really the victim, he says of the first law of thermodynamics: Heat is absorbed in proportion to the work done under pressure. Her remedy, he says further, lies in the second law of thermodynamics: Heat is always transferred from a body with a higher temperature to one with a lower temperature.

Thus, having named his hypothetical woman's morning on the first law of thermodynamics, and prescribed the second law as the cure, Parkinson then produces Mrs. Parkinson's Law: "Work under pressure produces a heat which expands to fill the mind available, from which it will pass only into a mind that is relatively cooler."

Obviously poor Parkinson is going round in circles. He is neither understanding the reasons for what might be called housewife's catastrophe, nor offers the poor woman any real help.

Who is this person of relatively cooler mind, into whose mind her heat is to be passed? Her husband? The housewife next door? Mabel?

Even Parkinson admits nothing is to be gained by phoning her husband at work and telling him her troubles. The chances are the housewife next door is dealing with the same disasters. And our hypothetical housewife was driving to Mabel's house when she hit the tree.

No, Parkinson's advice is that she put the day's mail aside, waiting until she has "leisure" time to read it; that she refuse to answer the phone; let it ring; and that she take a cold tub bath, sinking down to her neck three times.

Poor Parkinson. He's mad. The woman does not breathe who could turn her back on the mail and let the telephone ring itself out. As for taking a cold bath at 9 o'clock in the morning—inconceivable, psychologically impossible.

Parkinson may understand bureaucracy. He may even understand the inscrutable Orient, on which he is said to be an expert. But he doesn't understand women.

Green Urges Caution On OAS Issue

By IAN ARBOL

Sending Canadian troops to the Dominican Republic would probably have taken place last year if Canada had been a member of the Organization of American States, Howard Green, former external affairs minister, said Tuesday night in Victoria.

Prime Minister Pearson said last fall in Banff, Alta., that Canada had been giving active consideration to joining the OAS, Mr. Green said.

"We just can't afford to become a camp follower," he told an overflow audience of 140 at St. John Ambulance Hall.

The meeting was sponsored by the World Federalists of Canada.

"We're too weak," "As the OAS is organized at present, I think it would be impossible to exercise our own judgement," Mr. Green said.

"I am not sure the Canadian government is strong enough or tough enough to exercise our own judgement, or that the Canadian people would insist on it being exercised."

"Must be stronger" "If Canadians should decide that their future is to be one of the great nations of the world, putting forth a Canadian viewpoint and not taking orders from any other country, then I would be all for joining the OAS."

He said Britain would like a Commonwealth voice in OAS. The Latin American countries would like us to be working with them.

"They feel we would side with them against the U.S.," The former external affairs minister said he felt we have Among invited guests are Mayor Toome, Police Chief J. F. Gregory, Air Commodore R. C. Weston, Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, Group Capt. R. S. Turnbull, Group Capt. D. B. Wurtzle, Lt.-Col. C. L. Kirby, and Esquimalt-Saanich M.P. George Chatterton.

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Mac-Powell has announced a $1,000,000, four-point program to eliminate pollution in the Albernis atmosphere.

The program was announced by J. S. Rogers, manager of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. pulp and paper division at Alberni.

Speaking at a press conference Tuesday arranged by the mayors of the Twin Cities, Mr. Rogers said "the company is determined to beat this problem, if it is technologically possible."

Mac-Powell, "an acknowledged leader in industry in pollution control" according to Mr. Rogers, faces a meteorological condition in the valley almost the same as that in Los Angeles.

Under these conditions, layers of stagnant air lie over the area and prevent effluent from being carried away by natural air movements.

The company outlined its four point program to fight the problem:

● An additional $1,000,000 will be spent in the Albernis this year for general pollution abatement, over and above the money already spent.

● Production procedures are being changed in the hope this will give relief under adverse weather conditions. This means burning of hog fuel is being reduced during bad weather, to reduce fly-ash.

● Mac-Powell is proceeding immediately to install two boilers which should help. Mr. Rogers said these boilers will be very useful in helping to accommodate peak loads, thereby allowing hog fuel to burn under near-ideal conditions.

● The company says it is making every possible effort to expedite development of the recently-installed Doyle Scrubber, and then other stack cleaners, if, as and when these are proved effective, with the objective of eliminating fly ash from Port Alberni "once and for all."

Not Solved Overnight

"The company is very conscious of the effluent problem, and is highly concerned about it."

"We are putting these new measures into effect just as quickly as possible."

"World technology simply does not have all the answers that will enable us to overcome this problem overnight."

"But we are using all knowledge and equipment that is practical to improve this situation."

Other officials of the company met senior consultants of the company manufacturing the Doyle Scrubber Tuesday.

Mr. Rogers told the press conference the scrubbers would be installed on all boilers if evaluation proves the scrubbers effective.

The two 55-ton boilers are immediately available and have been in use at Harmac.

Location of Harmac mill makes it possible to use the hog fuel without a fallout problem there, Mr. Rogers said.

Had the boilers not been readily available, it might have taken as long as two years for the orders to be filled.

The two boiler units will be moved from Nanaimo to Port Alberni by barge and work on the move will start immediately.

He said this will take several months and will cost $100,000.

Industry's Pains

Immediate steps have been taken to help eliminate a portion of the flyash by curtailing use of hog fuel.

Once the new boilers are installed, there will be some seasons of the year when the plant will operate entirely on oil.

Little or no hog fuel will be burned if the weather is unfavorable, Mr. Rogers said.

"By next fall the situation will be greatly improved."

When a reporter asked why the company had not made these changes earlier, Mr. Rogers said "the week-long recent meeting in Vancouver between officials, has drawn to a head much work previously put in on the problem."

Speeding Car Blamed

A car moving at "a tremendous speed" killed Bror Nels Ivar Granewall, 54, of 5630 Alderley, at Craigflower and Lampson Jan. 18, witnesses told a coroner's jury Monday.

Mr. Granewall died when his light car was struck by a sports car driven by William Glen Owen, 338 Newport.

George Van Oyen, 880 Lampson, said he was stopped at Tillicum and Lampson when he saw the sports car approaching "at a tremendous speed."

"I've estimated it to police at 80 miles an hour."

"He tried to slow down, lost control, swerved to the left, then to the right, and then to the left again, and that's when he hit the Volkswagen," Mr. Van Oyen said.

The impact threw Mr. Granewall out of his car. He was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Pathologist Dr. Garth Walter said death was caused by a skull fracture and damage to the spinal cord.

Driver Mr. Owen said his speed was "between 25 and 40 miles an hour."

"One hundred feet from the Lampson Street intersection a car suddenly came out from Lampson Street. Either he had stopped or was proceeding very slowly," he said.

The inquest was adjourned to Monday night at Esquimalt Municipal Hall.

Says Battler of 'New Left':

28 Daily Colonist, Victoria Wednesday, Jan. 26, 1966

Don't Love Us—Give Us Rights

By WILLIAM THOMAS

If vaudeville is dead or dying it could be because entertainers like comedian Dick Gregory would rather tramp up and down with a picket chanting "We Shall Overcome," than just leave an audience laughing.

He played to a packed gymnasium at the University of Victoria Tuesday, but there was as much acid as wit in his act.

Prior to his show he sat and talked about his own involvement in protest and his political aspirations.

A former Baptist, he blasted U.S. churches for their "lack of initiative."

CHURCHES TURN BACKS "Corruption could not exist in our nation without the churches and judges. How can there be as much dope circulating in New York? The churches turn their backs to it."

"How is there corruption in our large cities without the judges being corrupt?"

ANTI-SEMITISM

"The higher up the line it gets, the more difficult it becomes to even talk about it, but it's there."

Gregory also charged "New York is almost as anti-Semitic as Germany was." He added that there had been a definite "anti-Semitic trend among protesting Negroes, especially during the Watts riots" in Los Angeles.

CIVIL RIGHTS He admitted many political groups were using the civil rights movement to advance their own causes.

"For me, personally, my civil rights activities have done something for my career as an entertainer. Many come to see just what I am like," he said.

CHEAP COP-OUT

"Anyone who can protest and doesn't is just a cheap cop-out for not showing up on the front line. It's our constitutional right to protest, and a man who does not try to change conditions and injustices is a traitor."

Dick Gregory is emphatic about national responsibility for protests for peace in the world.

"A man who pays for bombs is just as gully as the man over there who is dropping them."

POOR MAN'S WAR

He comments on service in Viet Nam this way: "That is a poor man's war. Those kids who did not get a proper education were drafted to fight, no that last year's high school dropout is this year's Viet Nam war dropout."

CANDIDATE

What is he going to do about his convictions? "I am going to run for mayor of Chicago because of what I feel is a new political atmosphere."

Asked about the chances of Negro Republican Edward W. Brooke, who is attorney-general for Massachusetts and a U.S. Senate candidate, Gregory said:

"He has several strikes against him. He is Negro in a white, Democratic, Catholic state, so perhaps he has three strikes against him. But with a charming white wife he may cut this down to one-and-a-half strikes."

HE CAN WIN

He added: "If the Republicans really get behind him, he can win."

Gregory forecast "a new political party will emerge from the New Left in time for the fall elections. If I am elected in Chicago my first job will be to clean out the slums, the police department—but first the slums. They must be the worst in the country, if not the world."

... ever hear of a whiteout?

"The police are just not paid enough and they do not have enough qualified people."

"We also do not have enough good teachers to go around. We would offer more, revamp the educational system and clean things up."

NEGRO VOTE

Questioned on his chances of capturing the voters' imagination, Gregory said, "I figure to get 90 per cent of the Negro vote and 30 per cent of the white vote if I run a good campaign in the spring of 1967."

The first time he really caught fire was on the suggestion that more than legislation would be needed to get a change of heart among white U.S. citizens.

JUST RIGHTS

Gregory bristled. "We just want our rights by law. We don't want any white men to love us. Love is the hardest thing to get. We don't want this. We will settle for the lesser—just our rights."

"When this love jazz starts, this is just another cop-out. Some guys marry women and they are not in love with them. I am not worried about white folks loving me at all. There is no mention of love in the constitution."

NOT FROM LOVE

"Any gains we got for civil rights came because we shattered the business and disrupted the peace. None of it came from love."

"If I had to depend on progress through love in the United States, I would leave in the morning."

DEMONSTRATION

"If 90,000 people had demonstrated at the Crucifixion, then Pontius Pilate would have said, 'Cool it baby—I'm just playing.' If those Christians had protested and demonstrated it would never have happened."

Gregory offered his analysis of Kennedy and Johnson as presidents: "Kennedy was the opposite of Johnson. He was lousy at home but great abroad. Johnson is the reverse. Kennedy would never have been shot anywhere off American soil. With Johnson it's the opposite."

FIVE DAUGHTERS

"If we had ever been able to combine Kennedy's foreign policy and Johnson's domestic ability, it would have been a beautiful thing, man."

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The Socreds Tuesday again snatched the minority government from defeat after the Conservative fielded a fantastic 97-out-of-97 to try to squeeze it out of office.

It was one of the most spectacular finishes in parliamentary history.

Only four MPs were absent from the Commons for the vote

on a Tory non-confidence motion that would have raised the old age pension from seventy-five dollars to one hundred dollars a month.

While barely recovered from the close vote, 134 to 126, the minority government today

looks down the barrel at another Tory non-confidence vote.

The Tories, at their caucus today, were expected to agree to move that the minority government be turfed out for failing to give good clean government to Canadians.

In addition, before the throne speech debate ends on Monday, two other non-confidence motions by splinter parties are possible under the rules.

Then the Commons moves to a supply motion debate, which also gives the opposition opportunity to move non-confidence.

Last night, Socred leader Robert Thompson was defending the action of his group in saving the government in non-confidence votes.

On Friday, his group voted with the government against a

New Democrat motion that would have raised pensions. The vote: 126 to 117.

Then, the gap was nine. Last night, it was eight. The overall vote was larger. If the government had not got wind during

Death Penalty Next for Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons debate on capital punishment will be the first order of business after completion of the throne speech debate and a supply motion, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

Replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson agreed that the debate should be held without delay. It would be up to house leaders of the various parties to work out the procedure.

Gangster's Swan Song

'Moroccans Paid For Kidnapping'

PARIS (Reuters) — French gangster Georges Figon, 39, a key figure in the Mehdi Ben Barka affair, told his lawyer before he died that Moroccan authorities paid 1,000,000 francs ($275,000) for the kidnapping of the Moroccan opposition leader, it was announced Tuesday night.

A communique issued by the lawyer Pierre Lemarchand, a Gaullist deputy, had disclosed this giving evidence Tuesday to the judge investigating the scandal.

Figon's body was found in his apartment last week. Police said he killed himself as they came to arrest him.

NOT SEEN SINCE

Ben Barka has not been seen since he was kidnapped on a Paris street Oct. 23 by three men—a French counter-espionage agent and two police officials.

The communique said Figon called on Lemarchand—not as his lawyer, but as a politician—to ask protection Nov. 2.

Figon told him then what he knew of the affair, Lemarchand said in evidence before Judge Louis Zolinger.

KNEW NOTHING

The lawyer claimed he knew nothing of the kidnap plot before that date.

TOLD POLICE

At Monday's interrogation justice sources said Lemarchand told the judge he had passed on information he learned from Figon to Supt. Jean Calles of police intelligence and to Marcel Leroy, a high official in the French counter-espionage service, now suspended.

'Mistress' Testifies At Poison Trial

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Mrs. Wanda Ostby, attractive 30-year-old housewife who claims to have been Dr. Robert Bohme's mistress since 1963, testified in Judge Hardy B. Soule's court here Tuesday the doctor told her he would "take care of Mary."

Mrs. Ostby, mother of three children who is divorcing her husband, said she and Dr. Bohme had been intimate on numerous occasions.

ASSAULT CHARGE

Dr. Bohme is on trial on a first-degree assault charge, accused of attempting to kill his wife Mary, 33, while she was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital here last June 30.

The state contends the Port Orchard physician gave her an injection of poison while she was hospitalized for injuries received from a falling plank in the family boathouse.

Mrs. Ostby's testimony caused Dr. Bohme to stand and shout: "your honor, this patient is committing perjury."

Judge Soule, who had removed Mary Bohme from the courtroom for the remainder of the trial for a similar outburst, warned Bohme it is possible for the judge to expell a defendant from a case if he interferes with orderly procedure.

Judge Soule who had watched her shake her head and smile wryly during McCutcheon's statement, ordered her removed.

WON FIGHT

"I have approved (your being here) up to this point. I will now exclude you as any other witness," Judge Soule said.

Earlier defence attorney Frank Peters had won a fight for the right to keep her at her husband's side throughout the trial, even though McCutcheon argued "even Perry Mason wouldn't do that."

Jet Crash Riddle 'Frozen'

CHAMONIX, France (Reuters) — Alpine rescue squads Tuesday night called off until spring their search for the bodies of 117 passengers and crew of an Air India jetliner that crashed on Mont Blanc Monday.

The decision, announced by police, represented a major setback in the search for an explanation of the plane's mysterious crash into the mountain when it should have been flying high and safe into Geneva, Switzerland, 45 miles away.

Martin Urges U.S.

'EXTEND PAUSE'

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin Tuesday urged the United States to "further extend" its pause in bombing of Viet Nam until all "reasonable possibilities" for negotiations have been exhausted.

In a major foreign policy statement to the Commons, Mr. Martin also said: "There may well be an intensification of the level of military activity in Viet Nam."

He also suggested that new terrorist fronts, similar to those which sparked the insurgency in Viet Nam, are now operating in Malaysia, Thailand and Laos.

The Commons was less and attentive as Mr. Martin devoted his whole contribution to the throne speech debate to the war in Viet Nam and its implications in the rest of Asia.

Mr. Martin said Canada welcomed the current U.S. pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam and was deeply disappointed by the absence of positive response from Hanoi.

"I would hope that the pause would continue as long as possible."

UTMOST CARE

"I would hope that before any final step were taken in this regard the most careful consideration would be given to an examination of any indication that North Viet Nam was seriously engaged now in examining the possibility of negotiations," he said.

Although he didn't say it, it is understood that officials of the Canadian external affairs department believe that Hanoi is in fact reconsidering its prospects of winning the war.

He expressed hope "that even at this hour" some indication would come from Hanoi of willingness to negotiate. He said Canada is satisfied "beyond any doubt" that recent U.S. peace moves "have been sincerely directed towards trying to bring about a discussion, without any preconditions..."

STRONG WORDS

He had strong words for those spokesmen, including New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas, who have criticized American action.

"Those who criticize that country ought to engage in the same energetic pursuit in trying to persuade the north and others that the time has come when we

UN Avoids Viet Nam

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg was reported to have told a group of congressmen Tuesday he has consulted United Nations leaders repeatedly on the possibility of Security Council intervention in the Viet Nam problem, but has found sentiment solidly against such a move.

Peace Overture Denied

CAIRO (AP)—Informed sources here said Tuesday the United States sent a new peace offer to Hanoi through the United Arab Republic and will, meanwhile, hold off bombing North Viet Nam, but the U.S. embassy denied it.

Officials in Washington expressed surprise over the report and also denied knowledge of any fresh overtures.

Chinese Rocketing Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prof. Ralph L. Powell, a specialist on China, said Tuesday that by 1970, or sooner, Peking will have developed a hydrogen bomb and a limited capability to deliver nuclear warheads by medium-range missiles.

And U.S. Preparing for It

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has described planned U.S. strategic offensive forces as far more than adequate to cope with any Soviet first strike.

The strategic missile force recommended for the 1967-71 period will provide "substantially more force than is required for an assured destruction capability against both the Soviet Union and Communist China," he said Tuesday.

Bombing Villages Part of War

CAMPBELL RIVER—"Going to war is like going to work," said Clifford Mitchell. "We started flying combat missions at 6 a.m. and continued until 7 o'clock at night."

Warrent Officer Mitchell, a U.S. Army helicopter pilot, has just completed a year of Viet Nam duty.

He is spending 45-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell, at Hill Island resort and marina 10 miles east of Campbell River.

He was shot down six times. "If one of our machines went down, the others either got them out or waited till help arrived.

***

The 22-year-old pilot was posted with the 121 Airborne Company, based at Soc Trang, about 90 miles south of Saigon.

He piloted a Viking-type turbo-prop helicopter.

These machings, with their four-man crews, prowled the skies over jungle in groups of five.

Mr. Mitchell's group was nicknamed the Blue Diamond Devils, because of the large black and blue diamond pointed on the front of each helicopter.

His last crash was from an altitude of 2,000 feet, when an anti-aircraft shell knocked off his rear motor.

"It was a controlled crash," he said.

After his companions got him out, he was sent to hospital with a minor leg injury.

***

He holds two Purple Hearts for wounds, the U.S. Air Medal with 21 oak leaf clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, and Viet name Cross of Gallantry. The Cross of Gallantry was presented to him by General Khanh, former boss of South Viet Nam.

What about U.S. policy of wiping out whole villages?

"It's all part of the war," he said.

"These people shelter the Viet Cong. The peasant who works in a rice paddy during the day in the Viet Cong infiltrator who attacks villages and American installations by night."

He said the Viet Nam demonstrators in the U.S. and other countries do not "fully understand" the reasons for the war.

"Our troops would like to see the U.S. either clean up the situation or pull out."

"The demonstrators are a small minority."

"They don't have the backbone to fight in Viet Nam."

"We are there to stop the flow of Communism."

He said the war in Viet Nam is just beginning.

***

He is not likely to be sent back to Viet Nam for some time. He leaves soon for Fort Walters in Texas, to take up duties as a flying instructor. Mr. Mitchell hopes to take up architecture and live and work in Canada.

Socreds Under Pressure

the day that the Tories were trying to field every member of their group and whipped in its own members, the vote could have been dangerously close.

Socred leader Thompson is feeling the pressure.

In the Commons, Tory Alvin Hamilton accused him of "cutting the throat" of Socreds. Premier Manning of Alberta and Bennett of British Columbia who had spoken out for higher pensions.

The issue, said Hamilton, was whether 1,000,000 Canadians who had borne the brunt of bringing the nation from the pioneer stage to a rapidly growing industrial nation should have the standard of living they deserve.

"There is no other issue," Hamilton said.

On his office, later, Mr. Thompson said he had nearly 200 letters protesting his stand in the Commons.

They called him "traitor."

UPSET INTENDED

"These votes," Mr. Thompson agreed "were not votes for old age pensions. They were intended to upset the government and force an election."

"I believe the major issue is stable government and the people would not stand for another election."

TOTAL TURNOUT

"I voted against those who would upset the stability of parliament."

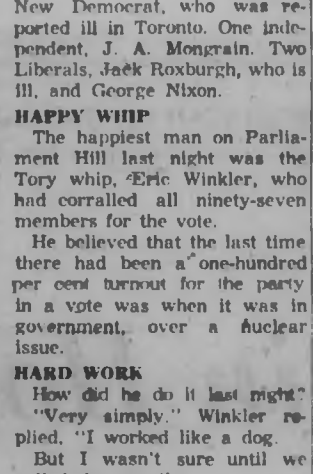

The total turnout by the Tories, he said, was just an "attempt to fly the flag" and it wouldn't be the same when parliament faced other issues.

MAXIMUM PAY

The Tories, he added, want to make the maximum political hay out of pensions.

Hamilton

Thompson

"But some of those who boo me in the Commons, thank me in private."

Mr. Thompson was asked how he would vote if the Tories move non-confidence, based on the integrity of the government.

He replied that any doubts he had about the government's "cleaning house" had been removed by . . .

● The election, in which the Canadian people returned the Liberals.

● The obviously forced resignations of cabinet ministers.

NO BLAMES

That, he said, was his position as far as the past was concerned.

He warned that his party was not giving a "blank cheque" to the Liberals, but would co-operate to make parliament work effectively.

In last night's vote, the line-up was:

For the Tory amendment, 126 including 97 Tories, 19 New Democrats, nine Creditists, and one Independent, Maurice Allard.

Against: 134, including 128 Liberals, five Socreds and a New Democrat, Frank Howard.

KEEP PROMISE

Later, Mr. Howard said he had split with his party in the vote because of a commitment to his constituents in B.C. not to vote against the government.

"It wasn't a case of keeping this particular government in," he said, "but maintaining more stability in parliament."

TWO SESSIONS

After the 1983 election, Mr. Howard came to parliament with a commitment not to vote against the government for two sessions.

The absentees were: One

New Democrat, who was reported ill in Toronto. One Independent, J. A. Mongrain. Two Liberals, Jack Roxburgh, who is ill, and George Nixon.

HAPPY WHIP

The happiest man on Parliament Hill last night was the Tory whip, Eric Winkler, who had corralled all ninety-seven members for the vote.

He believed that the last time there had been a one-hundred per cent turnout for the party in a vote was when it was in government, over a Nuclear issue.

HARD WORK

How did he do it last night? "Very simply," Winkler replied. "I worked like a dog."

But I wasn't sure until we called the vote."

FLU CASES

Three western MPs arrived from the west two hours before the vote. Walter Dinsdale, whose son is critically ill in Montreal, came from Montreal. And there were a couple of bad flu cases.

MAJOR PLANK

Was there a special purpose in missing all the troops?

"This was an extremely important vote," he replied.

"This was one of our major election planks, to raise the pensions for the older people."

All the parties are caucusing here today.

THREE ISSUES

The Tories, last week, discussed three major subjects for non-confidence assaults on the government:

1. Pensions.

2. Failure to give clean, honest government.

3. Failure to protect Canada from economic policies made in the U.S.

THREE SPEECHES

"No. 3" is expected to figure in today's non-confidence motion and, in time, "No. 3" will be put to the vote, too.

The eight-day throne speech enters its fifth day today.

So far, it has produced some highly emotional pitches for pensions.

PLEDGE GIVEN

Last night, Tory Alvin Hamilton said even a pension of one hundred dollars does not reach the minimum level that is needed.

He called on all those who had given pledges to their constituents to raise pensions to vote for the motion and throw the government out of office.

IMMORTAL SOULS

"This," he said, "will happen if these men honor their pledge to the constituents and to their immortal souls."

"You do not make pledges such as this to the senior citizens of your country without fighting tooth and nail to honor them."

PENSIONS

"It is the cruelest form of chicanery if men ask people to vote for them on the basis of supporting a pension of $100 a month, come into this House and then vote against it."

He singled out a Liberal, James E. Brown of Brantford, Ont., who, he claimed, said during the election campaign:

VOTED AGAINST

"I am supporting an increase in the state rate old age pension to $100 a month."

Last night, Mr. Brown voted against the increase.

ROLL CALL

Hamilton appealed: "I am asking each honorable member who doesn't want to be called a rubber stamp and who will not betray his principles and convictions to meet the roll call up yonder."

"But their statements made in this House make it very difficult for them to meet that final roll call up yonder."

Fountain's Variance Deliberate

It's not uneven pressure which causes the flow of water to fluctuate in the fountain in Centennial Square these days. It's that way by design.

A wind control device to govern the height to which the fountain jets rise was installed this week, and officials say it is working very well.

WORKED BY WIND

Located on the top of the adjacent parking building is a governor which is affected by wind pressure and by heat.

When the wind reaches a certain pressure, the pump which governs the flow of water to the fountain automatically cuts down or out.

Object, of course, is to prevent the water from being wind-blown outside the perimeter of the fountain and over whoever happens to be nearby.

DIVIDEND

A dividend since installation of the control is that the centre and dominant jet of water now rises, when the air is calm, 35 or 40 feet higher than the top of the tallest of the three monoliths in the centre of the fountain.

Death Decreed In Absentia

SEATTLE (AP) — Construction of a professional football stadium in the area of the Seattle-Tacoma Airport was suggested Tuesday by David Roland, Tacoma city manager.

Roland said the stadium could be financed through a bond issue shared by the King and Pierce counties and the cities of Tacoma and Seattle.

At the same time King County commissioner Ed Munro said the commissioners are willing to put a stadium proposal on the ballot in a special spring election if Seattle continues as a contender for a National Football League franchise.

'Extend Pause'

might have negotiations as a means of establishing peace in this particular area," he said.

"Whatever we may think of the course of conduct of our neighbor, the fact is that no one can sincerely suggest that the United States has not sought to carry out negotiations," he added.

LEADERS KILLED

Mr. Martin said the war must be viewed from three perspectives: the internal dissent in South Viet Nam, the outside aggression against South Viet Nam; the importance of the surrounding countries.

He said terrorist groups have continually killed the teachers, administrators, and health officials in South Viet Nam, making it difficult to establish a strong government.

"We would be entirely mistaken in regard to the Viet Cong as embodying a consensus of dissent in Viet Nam . . . Certainly there is nothing to suggest that there is any basis in the claim of the Viet Cong to be the sole legitimate representative of the people of South Viet Nam," he said.

NEW TERRORISM

Then he detailed for the first time, aggression and terrorist activities in nations close to Viet Nam.

He pointed out that Laos is now "to all intents and purposes partitioned."

"The part that is under Patet Lao control is being freely used for the movement of men and materials from North to South Viet Nam. Members of the armed forces of North Viet Nam have been engaged in open attacks against the armed forces of the royal government of Laos."

"In northeastern and southern Thailand there are the beginnings of the same kind of terror which marked the first phase of insurgency in South Viet Nam."

OVERTHROW AIM

He said the "Thai patriotic front" is operating from Feking. "It has within the past several weeks been joined by a new organization, the National Liberation League and army of Malaysia which is dedicated to the overthrow by revolutionary means of the government of Malaysia," he said.

"Are we, then, seriously to assume that all these movements are coming into being because the legitimate channels of local dissent in these countries have been closed?"

PART OF PATTERN

"Or is this part of the pattern of permanent revolution which is being propagated in some quarters?" he asked.

"Can we ignore the challenge of aggression of these Communist liberation fronts in Asia?"

Mr. Martin agreed with NDP leader Douglas that the United Nations had been "ignored" in its efforts to spark negotiations.

"It is clear that China would regard the secretary general (U Thant), I regret to say, as a persona non grata," he said. He hoped that U Thant would continue to look for ways to promote negotiation.

PEACE, NOT WAR

He repeated that Canada would be prepared to participate in peacekeeping forces once a settlement had been agreed upon.

But he stressed that under no circumstances will Canadian troops be sent to Viet Nam to participate in the war.

He said Canadian work on the International Control Commission is becoming increasingly frustrating. But he felt that the commission is still important for three reasons:

OBJECTIVE FACTS

The commission, he said, still symbolizes the validity of the Geneva agreements upon which any settlement will likely be based. It can still bring "objective facts" to the situation, and it could play a part in a settlement.

He rejected "without hesitation" that Canada's role with India and Poland on the commission has not been objective.

He said the Canadian government is prepared to devote further "substantial resources to the development of Southeast Asia."

FRAMEWORK

"I look towards this whole field of regional development as providing a framework within which South and North Viet Nam might be able to establish a basis for mutual acceptance and co-operation," he said.

He had one distinctly hopeful note in the long address.

"I believe that our relations with the Soviet Union are now on a much firmer foundation. I believe the threat of conflict between the Soviet Union and the West has very considerably receded."

In Ecuador Rough Play Means Jail

QUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (Reuters) — The touring Argentine soccer team Velez Sarsfield headed for Costa Rica Monday — after spending six hours in jail for alleged rough play.

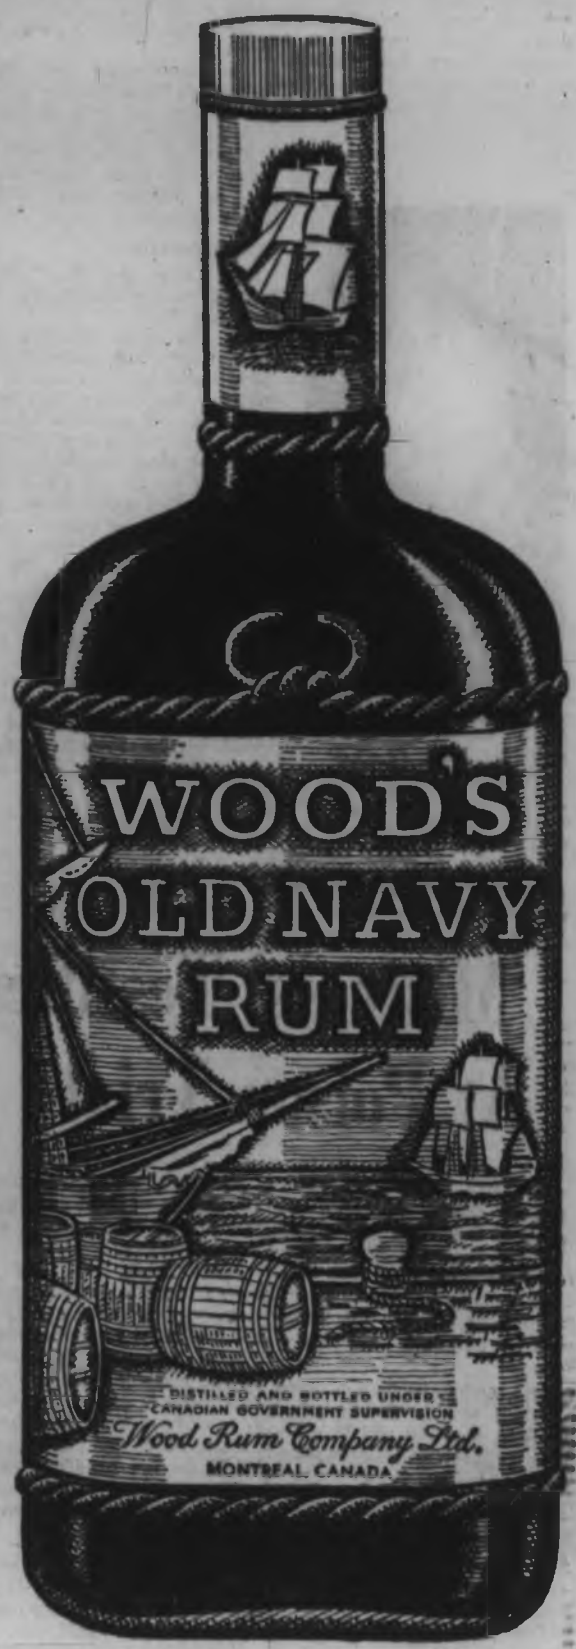

Police took the Argentine players off to the local lockup after a match Sunday in which Ecuador's top team, Emelec, defeated the visitors 2-0.

The Emelec players complained that the Argentinians went for them rather than the ball. The police took the field on the orders of the local sports commission.

Lack of Moisture in Eyes Can Cause Keratitis Sicca

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have keratitis sicca. Could you tell me something about it—G.B.

It is irritation of the eyes due to lack of enough moisture—lack of tears to lubricate them.

This may be associated with a decrease in mucus secretion elsewhere, as in the mouth and nose, (as in Sjogren's disease), and it may not be easy or possible to correct the problem.

However, the use of bland oil drops or "artificial tears" in the eyes will keep the membranes moist and comfortable.

Mrs. V.P.: I can't go so far as to say that infectious mononucleosis never recurs, but it usually doesn't.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a law that a child must be four years old before he can have his tonsils out—T.K.

No, certainly not. But there's plenty of common sense that says tonsils shouldn't be removed unless they need it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Four months ago I had my old upper teeth removed and now have a plate which is pushed rather high under my nose. I have a salty taste now, and my nose is constantly itchy. Could the pressure of the plate cause this?—M.H.

I question whether pressure or the plate itself is causing this, and wonder whether it may be a sensitivity to whatever adhesive you use to hold the plate in position. Discuss this with your dentist.

It is possible that the itchy nose might be the result of some other sensitivity, a coincidence not really related to the plate.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband claims there are vitamins in mushrooms but I disagree—MRS. P.B.

You're mistaken. Mushrooms, while not particularly high in calories, have very real food value, and some vitamins—A and B2, a fair amount of nicotinic acid, and a little Vitamin C. They are high in potassium.

Explanation to O.O.: Carcinomata means that carcinoma (cancer) is widespread throughout the body.

Medicare Has Pains

Electronic 'Idiot' Needs Extra Training

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

British Columbia's seven-month-old mini-medicaid infant — the B.C. Medical Plan — is having so many growing pains that 70 people and an electronic computer can barely meet its needs.

This burgeoning giant which now provides medical coverage for an estimated 194,000 British Columbians is tending in the ground floor offices of the old Mc and Mc building at the corner of Government and Johnson Streets.

The work load has grown so fast that there were 15,000 doctors' bills in November and 30,000 in December. This month, some 41,000 bills filed in November are being processed, and there will be 47,000 by February. And an electronic computer which is the backbone of the operation has turned out to be a "high-speed idiot" which will need many months' more training to do all of the menial jobs for which it is being leased, at the rate of $8,500 a month.

EXCESSIVE HOURS
One of the executives has racked up 800 hours of overtime since the prepaid medical care plan—B.C.'s answer to medicare—became effective last Sept. 1.

Geoffrey Stewart, president of the B.C. Medical Plan says, "We are enthusiastic with what has been accomplished during such a short period of time."

ACCEPTED JOB
Executive manager of the plan is Alan Brown, a 42-year-old University of British Columbia graduate who gave up his job as assistant secretary-treasurer of the MSA medical plan in Vancouver, to accept the post here.

The computer, with its main brain and banks of programmed magnetic tape machines, a punch card unit and printer which can hammer out 600 lines of type a minute when running at top speed, is a marvelous machine.

REPITITION
But it is currently running at a speed which requires 11 hours to print the 30,000 bills which have to be mailed out this month to subscribers.

"A lot of people call the computer a high-speed idiot. You have to be careful what you tell it to do because it will keep doing the same thing over and over again," Mr. Brown said.

PUNCH CARDS
Don Hayward, data processing manager, said his biggest problem has been getting all the incoming names, addresses and statistics recorded on punch cards and the 2,400-foot magnetic tapes which hold 552 characters per inch.

"We haven't had time to get it all organized on tape the way we want to, because from July 15 through November we had to create files and records for 194,000 people," said Mr. Brown.

OWN LANGUAGE
Ray Peters, program manager, is the man who holds the vital job of telling the machine what to do — he has to talk the computer's own language. The records search turns up 150 to 200 claims a month which are not covered, said Mrs. Bateman. Often this is because the patients gave the wrong identification numbers to the nurse on duty, or because they had failed to make their regular payments.

NO NUMBERS
Jack Whittaker, enrolment and accounting manager, said his biggest problem is people who mail correspondence or payments without quoting their identification numbers. Improperly filled-in application forms are the second-biggest headache.

The non-profit medical plan is incorporated under the Societies Act, but the provincial government pays between 25 and 50 per cent of some of the low income bracket subscribers' premiums.

The government also provides a stabilization fund which will cover losses in case revenue from the plan's premiums is not enough to meet its administrative and medical costs.

Day of Prayer

New Spirit Enters The Church

Christendom which a few years ago had an immovable Roman Catholic Church and a divided and chaotic Protestantism has been visited with a new spirit, Dean Brian Whitlow said Sunday afternoon.

"We are met here this afternoon to repent together the sins which have broken the visible unity of God's church, and to pray that He will, in His own good time, restore it to us once again."

The Anglican dean was speaking to the 1,400 who packed St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral for a Day of Prayer for Christian Unity.

PRAISE ROME
He praised "the great Church of Rome" for "vigorous and radical reforms."

"However, I want to emphasize that not only you but all of us must be ready for change and reform."

LIKE SHIPWRECK
Dean Whitlow likened the situation in the church "of not very long ago" to St. Paul's shipwrecked boat: "The fore-front stuck fast and remained immovable, but the hinder part was broken up with the violence of the waves."

"It seemed to many of us," said the speaker, "that the Roman Catholic Church was indeed stuck immovable and Protestantism was breaking into smaller and smaller pieces."

He referred to the great advances of the Second Vatican Council, and asked of fellow-Protestants, "Are we ready for equally courageous reforms?"

SUGGESTS REFORMS
He suggested Protestant reforms in the name of good Scriptural order and discipline for:

Dean Whitlow

● State churches with their excessive establishments giving too much authority to Caesar.

● "Confessional" churches bound hand and foot to their confessional charters, and at the mercy of their theological professors.

REFORM CHURCHES
● Reformed churches, whose ministers are subject to call or rejection by their laity.

Dr. William Klempa of St. Paul's-Gorge Presbyterian Church stressed the church's mission as the reconciliation of mankind.

Dr. Klempa emphasized not only "putting our own houses in order" but also a mission to the rest of the world.

Russians Off California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The Russians are expected to begin fishing off the California coast within a year, says Dr. Milner Schaefer, director of the University of California Institute of Marine Resources.

Schaefer told the assembly conservation and wildlife committee Monday that a Soviet fishing fleet entered the Gulf of California last week for the first time.

Schaefer noted that the Russians recorded another first when they dragged their nets off Washington's Cape Flattery last spring.

"And if we can't compete with them," he said, "they deserve to catch these fish."

The Russians are fishing in international waters outside the three-mile limit, he said.

FEW NEED JOBS
Registered unemployment in Norway went up 60 per cent to a total of 14,200 in November, 1965.

NDP Leader Urges

Service, Not Surplus

In an unprecedented move Tuesday, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan called upon the provincial government to include some major policy changes in its Speech from the Throne on Thursday.

It is time for "an end to innocuous, meaningless Throne Speeches," and for the government to stop piling up multi-million-dollar budgetary surpluses and start providing more services for the people, he said.

The NDP leader said he was releasing his proposals in a press conference two days before the opening of the legislature, so the government would have time to include them in its Throne Speech.

WIDER COVERAGE
Normally the opposition waits until later in the session to present its proposals to the government.

Mr. Strachan asked that the B.C. Medical Plan be enlarged to include every citizen in the province and that its coverage be expanded to include the cost of prescription drugs.

Health services should also be changed to provide B.C. Hospital Insurance Service coverage of ambulance service and care for the chronically ill.

NEW PROGRAMS
New legislation and programs are needed to overcome the problems of automation and there should be a complete overhaul of negotiating procedures to create increased labor-management harmony, he said. Major changes in educational procedures are needed, along with a revision of the basic grant formula to provide more money to local school boards so that school taxes can be held in check at the local level.

Strachan ready for session

CAR INSURANCE
A government-sponsored automobile accident insurance plan is needed "to put an end to the present high-cost, inadequate service provided by the private insurance companies, with its attendant discrimination, price gouging, victimization of our young people, intimidation and leader, "that the people of B.C. have been overtaxed merely to build unnecessarily large surpluses."

JUSTIFICATION

"Continued taxation at present levels can only be justified by the provision of increased services," said Mr. Strachan.

"We are demanding that the Speech from the Throne let the people know they are to have these increased services. Anything less than adequate legislation in these fields will mean the government is not measuring up to the urgency of the times."

The NDP leader proposed that the extra revenue which is now being used to build larger annual surpluses should be diverted to provide the increased services.

This year thousands more people will walk into a Trust Company and become customers

How will you judge the financial strength of the Company you plan to trust with your money?

By the interest you'll earn? Yes—partly. But you'll also want to be sure your money is safe, with a company whose strength you can count on. To judge a company's financial strength, these are the things you should consider: its history of integrity and public acceptance; its record of growth and achievement; its people and management; its financial assets.

INTEGRITY AND PUBLIC ACCEPTANCE: At Canada Trust-Huron & Erie, we celebrated our 100th birthday in 1964. And our 102 years of constantly widening public acceptance testifies to the success of our policy of maintaining a high standard of ethics—in business and with our customers. Our financial integrity is a sure guide to financial safety for you.

GROWTH AND ACHIEVEMENT: What has Canada Trust-Huron & Erie accomplished? We've become Canada's leading independent savings, loan, and trust company. We provide more than twenty-five different financial services for Canadians in all walks of life—from people with small savings accounts to those requiring management of estates, trusts, and commercial property. Our fifty offices now stretch from coast to coast, and we'll continue to expand with the growing Canadian economy. If you're planning to become one of thousands of new Trust Company customers this year, look to past achievements as an indication for your future.

PEOPLE AND MANAGEMENT: Since Canada Trust-Huron & Erie opened its first office, the men who made decisions have been among the most respected in the financial community. This is still true today. In the final analysis, the achievements of a company depend on the people who run it, and at Canada Trust these people are selected for their integrity, experience, and financial responsibility. Something to count on when choosing a Trust Company.

FINANCIAL ASSETS: Here are some important financial facts from the 1965 Canada Trust-Huron & Erie Annual Report.

Total Assets Under Administration . . . . . Increased to $1,356,000,000
Estates, Trusts and Agencies . . . . . Increased to $795,000,000
Savings, Deposits, Debentures and Trust Certificates . . . . . Increased to $512,000,000
Mortgage Loans . . . . . Increased to $432,000,000
Net Profit (Consolidated) . . . . . $2,615,000

With a large financial institution like Canada Trust, you can be sure you're getting the highest interest rates compatible with security. And isn't that what you're looking for?

Take Flowers To Hospital

At a meeting of Esquimalt Chapter, IODE, members heard from a former member, Mrs. June Bennett of Ottawa, who sent a write-up of Princess Margaret's visit to a bazaar in New York.

Regent Mrs. C. A. Dodinead presided, and was nominated as councillor for Provincial chapter, along with Mrs. Nellie Ormond and Mrs. A. W. Smith.

It was reported that 36 hours were spent by members at Red Cross Lodge, and Mrs. J. A. Brown and committee will take flowers to the Veterans' Hospital next month.

Annual meeting will be held in the banquet hall of Esquimalt Sports Centre, 1151 Esquimalt Road. Luncheon will be served at 12:15 p.m. followed by election of officers.

The executive will meet Jan. 31 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Dodinead, 2725 Lincoln Road.

The Walk Can Be Learned

CHICAGO (AP) — Women who wiggle when they walk have no physiological reason for walking that way, says a bone specialist.

"The female walk can be put on," said Dr. Louis H. Parades, assistant professor of orthopedics at the University of Texas' southwestern medical school in Dallas.

"It (the walk) can be learned without difficulty and easily becomes a habit," Parades said Monday.

Parades and his colleagues have been taking movies of people walking for several years. One of the questions they sought to answer was: Why do women wiggle when they walk?

He said that the undulating female gait most certainly does not come naturally. It's got to be learned.

RAISIN BROWN BREAD

Little Jack Horner (and it's popular with children in our Atomic Age as it was with young Master Horner's friends.)

Spread with butter or cream cheese, it goes happily to the most formal tea. Teamed with jam or marmalade, it makes a hearty luncheon treat. And for a sale of home-baked goods or as a gift for a shut-in friend Raisin Brown Bread is a top favorite.

This recipe makes three loaves which can be happily baked in clean, greased 20-ounce juice tins. It slices nicely into rounds for dainty servings.

Raisin Brown Bread keeps well, thanks to the blend of molasses, spices and raisins. Wrap the loaves which you don't plan to use immediately in aluminum foil and store in airtight containers. Reheat in foil, prior to serving, for ten or fifteen minutes in a 350 deg. F. oven.

Yield — 3 loaves

One cup hot water; ½ cup brown sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; 2 tablespoons margarine or butter; ½ cup light molasses; ½ cup lukewarm water; 2 teaspoons granulated sugar; 2 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast; 4 cups pre-sifted all-purpose flour; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1 teaspoon all-spice; 1 cup dark seedless raisins.

Combine hot water, brown sugar, salt and margarine or butter. When mixture is melted, add molasses and cool to lukewarm.

Meanwhile measure lukewarm water into medium bowl; stir in 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm mixture and 2 cups of the flour. Beat 2 minutes with electric mixer or 300 strokes vigorously with a wooden spoon.

Add remaining flour and spices; beat with a spoon until smooth. Fold in raisins until well blended. Cover, let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Turn down.

Turn batter into 3 well-greased 20-ounce juice tins. Let rise as before until doubled in bulk, about ¾ of an hour.

Bake in preheated moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) for 35-40 minutes, or until done.

Cool in tins on rack for 10 minutes remove from tins and cool on racks.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My in-laws just left and I am sick to my stomach. Yesterday their only daughter gave birth to her fourth son and they are so unhappy you would think somebody in the family had died.

My husband and I have three fine boys (6, 4, and 2) and frankly, we're satisfied with things as they are. We wouldn't trade one of our sons for a million dollars but we wouldn't give two cents for a fourth one.

Tonight my father-in-law took me aside and said it is up to me to have a girl. He insists that the law of averages will take care of me—that out of eight grandchildren one has to be a girl. He offered to pay all medical expenses and give us $5,000 if I will have another baby.

I asked him what he would do if I had another boy. He replied, "It can't happen."

I am so mixed up I am half sick. Please advise me.—EDITH

Dear Edith: It is outrageous that your in-laws regard you as a baby machine — and would stoop to bribery in an attempt to feed their sick egos. Insist that your husband silence his parents permanently.

Dear Ann Landers: My father reads your column every day and says you are a woman with a good head on your shoulders. He is a very stubborn person and will not listen to anybody, not even my mother. You are my last hope.

I am 17 and a high school senior. My father says I cannot go with Ricky any more because he is "physically unfit." Rick was turned down by the Navy because he has a weak heart. According to my father, if I marry Rick I will have to support him for the rest of my life.

I was not attracted to Rick for physical reasons. He is the kindest and most considerate person I have ever known. I have no plans to get married until I am 21, at least. And when I marry it won't be for looks, or physique or any such nonsense. Furthermore I may not even marry Rick. I just want to go with him.

Please print my letter and your answer. — SEEN NOT HEARD

Dear Sees: Your father's reasoning is faulty. Many young men who are rejected by the services for physical defects will lead active lives and live to a ripe old age. By the same token, it is not uncommon for a man who has always been in excellent health, to suddenly develop a disabling

Act Your Age Is Balmain Message

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP)—Act your age was the message that Pierre Balmain had for women today in a spring collection featuring costumes that were neither too young nor too old for the pretty models who wore them.

There were no sweet lavender-haired ladies with canes, as was the case in a Florence show recently. But the Balmain models did range in age from a fresh-looking, long-haired, 19-year-old to diet-conscious women old enough to have had several husbands.

In a fashion season that of their figure-conscious suits and dresses.

Balmain's own description of his silhouette sounds like alphabet soup. The cut is Y or H-shaped, slightly widened toward the hem. A new two-piece cut for the sleeves gives the seams a V shape. Sometimes the result is an S curve and other times the shape on the less well-endowed models is much like an I.

The young dared to wear hats

of their figure-conscious suits and dresses.

Vancouver Wedding Of Interest Here

A wedding of wide interest took place in St. Paul's Anglican Church in Vancouver on Saturday afternoon, the principals being Shannon Rosemary Hay and Richard James Hibbard.

Rev. J. W. Ellis officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Alfred Hay of North Vancouver and the son of Rear-Admiral and Mrs. J. C. Hibbard of Victoria. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin styled on Empire lines with elbow length sleeves and banded at the hemline with Alencon lace. Her high pouf veil of silk illusion was held by a coronet of pearls and crystal which had been worn by the groom's mother at her wedding. Her bridal bouquet was of white freesias.

Miss Daphne Williams was maid of honor and Miss Marion Hay was bridesmaid for her cousin.

They wore floor-length, Empire style dresses of pelican pink velvet and carried about bouquets of shaded pink garnet roses to match their headpieces.

Mr. William M. Vogel was best man and Mr. M. Arthur Stilwell and Mr. George Brown showed guests to the pews. The reception was held at the Vancouver Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club where the bridal table, centred with the wedding cake was flanked with arrangements of white Christmas roses and heather. Lighted white candles were in silver candelabra.

Mr. Douglas C. Newitt proposed the bridal toast.

The bride's mother chose a two piece suit of the silk in shades of pink and lilac with large pouf tulle hat in the same colors. Mrs. Hibbard wore a coat of green velvet cut on classic lines over her emerald green lace dress. Her hat of emerald green and sapphire blue was of intricately worked ostrich plumes.

After a honeymoon at Cheakamus Inn on Mount Garibaldi, Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard will live at the Thunderbird Apartments in Vancouver. Going away the new Mrs. Hibbard wore a suit of cocoa brown topped with a

W A Meets Commitment

Mrs. C. C. Warren, president of the board of directors for George Road Hospital, told the Women's auxiliary at the annual meeting in the Dominion Hotel, that the hospital was now carrying out its original commitment, that of functioning as a complete rehabilitation centre.

She congratulated the group on its donation of a hydrotherapy pool, valued at $15,000, as the auxiliary's contribution toward the new wing.

In her president's report, Mrs. E. R. Owen told of the group's objective of providing new H.L. beds for the hospital. In addition to the pool, the auxiliary donated $3,620 toward the bed project during the past year.

The establishment of an updated library for the hospital was another project that had been completed in 1965.

In her treasurer's report, Mrs. C. Douglas noted that the group had raised $9,040.42 during the past year.

Mrs. A. G. Hamilton reported a membership of 36 active and 19 associate members.

Other reports were given by: Mobile cart and store, Mrs. H. T. Shemilt; publicity, Mrs. Douglas; Sunshine, Mrs. G. Callan (in the absence of Mrs. A. Mawer).

Mrs. Warren installed the new officers. Mrs. Owen was re-installed as president.

Other officers are: Vice-president, Mrs. E. Ash; recording secretary, Mrs. G. F. Hillard; correspondence, Mrs. T. G. Daltzell; treasurer, Mrs. Douglas, and past president, Mrs. Callan. One-year directors are Mrs. A. Peddesen and Mrs. S. S. Smetburat. Appointed as directors for two-year terms are Mrs. Callan and Mrs. J. N. Ford. Mrs. Warren is an honorary member.

Receiving their pins and installed as new members by Mrs. Owens were Mrs. G. Leeming and Mrs. B. Wiper.

City Says They Bid Too High

Port Firms Want Jobs

PORT ALBERNI — Civic projects should go to local contractors, according to Alberni Valley Contractors Association. The association's argument will be put before the city council in committee for study.

Ald. J. R. Dalton said "I have been criticised for not giving certain jobs to local contractors."

Ald. Dalton said this is not always possible, in fairness to the public treasury.

He said "out of nine bids on a recent project, the best four were not local."

Inspection Prepared

Boys Make Good Showing

DUNCAN — Cowichan Sea Cadets have taken third place in B.C. following an officer's inspection in December.

The Sea Cadet Corps was chosen as the only sea cadet corps on Vancouver Island that will be inspected by Cmdr. Richard Cavanaugh, RCN.

MAPLE BAY — Cmdr. Cavanaugh is commander of Canadian Sea Cadets. The inspection will be held Feb. 7, at 7:30 p.m., at the Maple Bay Barracks of the local corps.

The inspecting officer will be accompanied by Lieut. Cmdr. John Hobbs, RCN, and Denis W. Brown, president of the Vancouver Island Branch, Navy League of Canada.

PARENTS WELCOME — The corps under the command of Lieut. Douglas Barker, will parade with six officers and 45 cadets.

Navy League president in the Cowichan area Peter Brand said "we hope many parents will come and meet the men who are in charge of their boys' training."

The Admiral Mainguy cadets have started building their new rifle range at the Maple Bay barracks under direction of their commanding officer, Lieut. D. W. Barker.

Two weeks ago the boys tackled a drainage problem, diverting a small stream from the area where the range is being built.

Contest Opens For Indians

The Canadian Confederation Centennial Committee of B.C. is offering $1,000 in prizes to Indian students for carvings, paintings, m. s. s., handicrafts, legends, original stories, and articles.

The contest is open to Indian students in Indian Day schools, residential schools, parochial schools and provincial schools.

LEGENDS — Grades 1 to 3 students will try for $200 in prizes for Indian stories and legends, and drawings and paintings which illustrate Indian stories or other aspects of Indian culture.

Prize money totalling $400 will go to Grade 4 to 7 students for Indian stories and legends, drawings and paintings to illustrate legends or other aspects of Indian culture, and Indian carvings or other handicrafts.

MODERN PROBLEMS — High school students will try for $400 in prize money for Indian stories and legends, original articles on contemporary problems of Indian people, original stories or poetry dealing with aspects of Indian life in B.C., and carvings or other native handicrafts.

PROTECT PURSE

"But for the protection of the city treasury, we should be able to go out of town if needed," Alderman Reynolds said.

Council received two reports on building problems:

The first concerned premises on Eleventh Avenue North, which had been found to be dual occupied, with a basement suite that did not conform to bylaws in the matter of ceilings, sanitary facilities and other respects.

In addition the roof was draining at will, flooding adjoining lawns and gardens, the yard was littered with scrap lumber, and the building permit was long outdated.

GOOD PROGRESS

However, the owner had been advised of steps he must take and when the building was next inspected, it was found to be completed in as directed, Ald. Reynolds said.

Residents of a home at Fourteenth and Montrose were asked to remove a carport which was found to be on city property.

The original home was built almost on the property line and only recently had the property behind come into use as a subdivision. The space where the carport stands is actually a lane allowance.

Just a Tip Remains

The Sharon was raised by Nanaimo Harbor Commission Tuesday morning, and will be beached today. This 35-foot troller sank Sunday, and authorities are not sure what caused the boat to sink at its moorings in Commercial Inlet. The owner is Vernon Lowden of Nanaimo Bay.

Hornby Problem

Residents Unhappy With Transport

COURTENAY—There is still no agreement between residents and the school board over transportation of students from Hornby Island to high school.

"Why they won't accept our offer of having one bus meet a ferry, then getting a second bus to another ferry before reaching Vancouver Island, I fail to see," said Chairman Brian Walker.

According to reports the cost of hiring a special bus to transport the Hornby children directly to and from school was prohibitive. Mr. Walker added "I'm quite sure there is no need to go to the high cost of tying up one bus for a complete day."

HIGHER GRADES

Other issues in the picture were the request for Hornby School to be turned into a superior school which would enroll students to Grade 10, and possibility of living accommodation being provided in Courtenay.

A letter was received at the board meeting this week from the Hornby parents asking for a direct bus to take older students to either Courtenay or Cumberland high school.

BUS PLAN

The subject came up first when parents felt insufficient discipline was given to children boarding in town. The latest proposal by parents was a bus to pick up Hornby students and deliver them to school on Vancouver Island.

The board decided to seek a meeting with Hornby PTA in an effort to resolve the situation.

VARY MEETINGS

Barry Anderson, newly-elected trustee, said board meetings be held in different schools each time.

His suggestion came after he reported on a visit to a school where the principal told him it was the first time a trustee had ever paid such a visit.

He suggested board members visit the schools more often. "If we don't go to these schools, how do we know what problems they have?"

QUITE IMPRACTICAL

Mr. Walker's reply to the suggestion was "meetings at the schools would be quite impractical." He added that it would be good for trustees to visit the schools more often, but said, "our time is limited."

Mr. Anderson also suggested that each trustee be responsible for several schools in his area and added "if we are just worried about time, then why do we bother to sit around this table?"

NEW COMMITTEES

Mr. Walker appointed the committees of the board: Finance, Larry Hartman; Health, Mrs. John Buchanan; Mrs. Roy Morre, Library and management; Dr. Dennis Bullen, Education; Barry Anderson, Public Relations; Len Avenet, Personnel; Mr. Walker, Grounds and Buildings.

A delegation of 13 parents appeared at the meeting to request some parking facilities at Arden School. Spokesman Frank Bell said cars lined up on either side of the road before and after school constitutes a hazard for young children who might run from behind and be injured.

EQUIPMENT NEEDED

The board informed the parents the Highways Department would widen the shoulder as soon as equipment is available.

Mr. Bell said "I don't think this will solve the situation but we will accept this for the time being."

Hearing Quiet

NANAIMO — No objections were lodged at a hearing Tuesday, George Ward had made application to resume 11; across off McGarrigle Road in Northfield from residential industrial to residential only. McGarrigle Road is a side road off Northfield Road, and much of this area has a dual zoning.

Parksville Moves to Rebuild Scout Hut

PARKSVILLE — Chamber of Commerce has started a drive to rebuild the Scout hut, which fell to the heavy snowfall.

The building has been used by Scouts and Cubs for 15 to 20 years.

Twin-Title Sue Will Open Show

DUNCAN — Sue Falconberg, 18, who holds two titles, Miss Teen Town and Miss Cowichan Timbermen will open centennial celebrations by cutting a ribbon Monday at Cowichan high school, when a military band will give a concert.

Miss Falconberg is a Grade 12 student at the school.

Announcing details of Monday's event, chairman of the centennial celebration committee Ernie Hamn said Duncan Mayor Jack Dobson and North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton will give brief addresses, and chairman of the Cowichan Ministerial Association Rev. Andy Simmonds, will make a dedication to the centennial year.

Also taking part Monday night will be members of the Army, Sea and Air Cadets. The affair will start at 8 p.m.

Tofino Chamber Reviews Busy Year

TOFINO — The chamber of commerce here had a busy year of activities in 1965.

The chamber asked the provincial government for provision of proper water supply at Green Point campsite at Long Beach.

A committee was appointed to see what could be done to improve television reception in Tofino. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was asked to try to improve reception.

Tofino chamber supported efforts of Pacific Trollers Association for a better trail at Hot Springs Cove.

Members worked for a charter air operation at Tofino.

Debris and silt at Kennedy Lake was brought to the attention of the provincial government and federal fisheries department.

The hut was not insured against weather damage.

NANAIMO — Lewis Stephens, 48, an unemployed part-time Nanaimo taxi driver, was fined $175 in police court Tuesday, and his driving licence was suspended until May 31 on a charge of impaired driving.

Stephens was stopped by police after he was noticed driving up Victoria Road without his headlights on.

CHEMAINUS — Wilfred Robert Rodriguez, 49, a Chemainus sawmill worker of Crofton was sentenced to 30 days imprisonment on two charges of driving while suspended.

Both terms will run concurrently.

He only pleaded guilty to one of the charges but was convicted on both.

He was checked by police last week.

FULFORD — Funeral services for Robert Gibling, 73, was held in St. Mary's Church Jan. 18.

He died at Lady Minto hospital.

Mr. Gibling was a veteran of both world wars.

He came to Canada in 1919, and spent the last nine years in Fulford.

UCLUELET — Two women hurt in a car crash Christmas Eve are back home after a stay in hospital. Mrs. Nora Wess-nedge suffered a broken arm and Mrs. Phyllis Watson received leg injuries.

DUNCAN — Members of the Cowichan Valley Natural History Society recently elected Arthur Bowen as new president.

Other officers:

George Highmore, vice-president; George Mayer, treasurer; Charles Meredith, secretary.

Highlight of the group's annual meeting was a talk on a canoe trip on Bowron Lake and Strathcona Park.

The speaker was Sydney Watts of Duncan, who is a member of the Island Mountain Ramblers.

FULFORD — Doris Anderson of Beaver Point has been re-elected president of St. Mary's Guild.

Other officers: Mrs. Andrew Stevens, secretary; Mrs. R. R. Altun, treasurer; Mrs. Leslie Mollet, vice-president; Mrs. A. Davis and Mrs. Edward Lacey, committee.

TOFINO — Residents have learned the former principal of Christies Residential School on Meares Island, Rev. Father James Mulvihill, has been named Bishop of Whitehorse Yukon.

Bishop Mulvihill was principal in the late 1940's, when he was an oblate missionary priest.

He has paid several visits to the Kakawis school, across from Tofino, over the years.

DUNCAN — Lambert Johnny, Cliffs Road, is out of hospital after treatment following an accident Saturday. He was struck by a car while walking on Government Street near Boundary Road.

No U.S. Tax Boost In Sight Say Congressional Leaders

By THOMAS J. FOLEY

The Los Angeles Times WASHINGTON—Congressional leaders predicted Monday President Johnson will not seek a tax increase this year and made it clear they won't be enthusiastic about it if he does.

The president may indicate his decision in his annual State of the Union message Wednesday evening. He will outline his plans in detail in his 1967 fiscal year budget message which will be sent to Congress Jan. 24. The 1967 fiscal year starts next July 1.

There were reports that the president will propose two measures that would speed collection of higher-bracket individual as well as corporate taxes in the next fiscal year without actually raising the rates. The two proposals could add as much as $2.5-$3 billion to federal income next year.

Key man in congressional policy-making on taxes is Chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas of the House Ways and Means Committee, where all revenue legislation originates.

Mills said he had had no chance to discuss taxes at any length with the president and did not want to comment now on either the need or likelihood of higher taxes.

However, Mills noted predictions that federal revenues in the 1967 fiscal year may reach $108,000,000,000 and said he thinks the booming economy probably will push them even higher. He said he thinks they will top $100,000,000,000 during the current fiscal year.

Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, a senior member of the committee and Democratic whip in the house, put the revenue growth next year at $8 or $9,000,000,000.

next year of around $110,000,000,000 compared with spending now predicted at "close to" $115,000,000,000—leaving a deficit of less than $5,000,000,000.

On the basis of these projections, the congressmen are optimistic that the administration can avoid the need for asking for higher income or corporate taxes.

House majority leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma said he did not think taxes needed to be raised "based on the knowledge I have."

Rep. John Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, said he does not believe the president can afford to trim back his domestic expansion programs and that GOP opposition to a tax increase would thus be inevitable. However, Byrnes also said he did not think Mr. Johnson will propose higher rates this year.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

Over the past couple of years, I have noticed a steady increase in the number of letters from readers requesting information on how to get rid of moles in the lawn. Whether the mole population is increasing, or whether the little burrowing animals are moving into the populated centres from the wild, I wouldn't know, but hardly a week passes without a wall of anguish from some home gardener whose lawn has been riddled with mole runs.

There are a few proprietary preparations on the market especially formulated to control moles. Cyanogas, for instance, is a powder that releases the deadly cyanic acid gas when wetted; the mode of procedure is to cut an opening into a mole run, sprinkle the powder on the damp earth, then seal up the hole with mud and let the gas do its work.

There is an English product called the Topvil Fuse which works in much the same way. The fuse is ignited and placed in the mole run to release a poisonous smoke. Rodent Rocket is an American version of the Topvil Fuse, while Molegen is a poisonous powder. I understand the animals get it on their feet and lick it off.

In addition to these packaged products, there are several home remedies that work with varying degrees of success. One which is often recommended in garden books is to gas out the moles with carbon monoxide by running a length of rubber hose from the car exhaust to the mole run. One lady told me she liked the mole problem by drowning the animals; she poked a hole into the run, inserted the garden hose and simply let it run for several hours.

To my mind, one of the best home remedies is to drop some calcium carbide in the runs and seal them; calcium carbide releases acetylene gas when it comes in contact with moist soil. I don't know whether this kills the moles or just drives them away, but it seems to work pretty well. I can't tell you where to buy calcium carbide—possibly a welding shop may have it, but I think a better bet would be to enlist the aid of a high school chemistry teacher, for I am pretty sure they use the stuff in lab demonstrations.

Actually, I am not at all happy over the idea of killing moles, for I cannot bring myself to regard them as pests. Moles are carnivorous; they do not eat our plants or roots, but feed exclusively on grubs and worms, thereby destroying enormous numbers of cutworms, wireworms, leatherjackets and other underground pests. Seemingly the thing to do is persuade these useful predators to move their tunnelling activities from the lawn to some other part of the garden.

Several ingenious gadgets have been used to repel moles, and while I have had no personal experience with them, I pass them on for what they are worth.

One American device is called a Klackety-Klack, and it should be possible for any handyman to knock one up from a few bits of wood. It is nothing but a little wooden windmill mounted on a post in the lawn. The shaft of the propeller is fitted with a small boss that strikes a wooden tongue as it rotates, making a clacking sound; this vibration is transmitted down the post and into the ground, and the moles, extremely sensitive to vibration, turn aside and go elsewhere.

In England it is reported that empty bottles half buried, with their necks sticking up, will also repel moles. The theory here is that the wind, blowing across the open mouth of a bottle, will set up vibrations which moles will detect and avoid. In England, too, a mole-repellent plant called Euphorbia althyrus is grown; I have a few seeds of it, sent to me by a reader who claims no moles came within 60 feet of the single plant, and I will be glad to share my seeds, as they last, with anyone wishing to experiment along these lines.

Actually, to my mind, the best way to combat the mole is to get rid of the worm the lawn with chlordane emulsion, for moles cannot exist where all the worms and grubs have been killed.

Airs His Prejudices

Fairly Personal Prejudices: Observing an intelligent woman desperately trying to win the approbation of her silly mother. I thought that nothing is more pitiful than desiring the good opinion of someone whose opinion we do not respect.

Diligence can never do in a moment; but conversely, neither knows how to squander its capital, and soon goes bankrupt.

The conservative is governed by the dead; the radical is governed by the yet unborn; neither knows how to come to terms with the present, or how to hold yesterday and tomorrow in a fruitful tension with today. When God reveals himself in the Bible, all he says is: "I am." It is only man who has the presumption to say: "I have."

It is no accident that women prefer novels, while men prefer history; for men want to know what people did, while women want to know how people felt—and only the ability to put the two together can provide us with a true understanding of the human scene.

A great sorrow either deepens us, or drains us; it makes the exceptional man more compassionate and profound, and the mediocre man more bitter and banal.

If we ever pierce to the heart of scientific truth, and psychological truth, and social truth, we shall find that they all correspond to artistic truth—the harmony and unity and beauty in a poem or a painting or a piece of music are not merely works of imagination, but prophecies and prefigurings of the ground of ultimate reality.

Love this does not alter a person for the better is not love, but some plausible (and dangerous) counterfeit; for, as St. Augustine says, "Love always what we have been that we may be what we were not."

One of the silliest proverbs is the one that begins, "For want of a nail, a shoe was lost," and so on until the nation was lost; any nation that depended on only one rider to carry a message to a battlefield deserved to lose.

We are all aware of the few men who are living "before their time"; but for each one of these, thousands are living "after their time"—men who are intellectually and emotionally imprisoned in the past, and who mistake the walls of their ancient cell for the vault of the sky.

Many married couples separate because they quarrel incessantly; but just as many separate because they were never honest enough or courageous enough to quarrel when they should have.

Philip's Tour All Set

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Every hour of Prince Philip's 11 days in the United States, from March 9th to the 20th, has already been planned to the last detail. The big wing-ding will be in Hollywood on the night of the 14th for the gala banquet to benefit the charities sponsored by Variety International Clubs. Henry Manners of the Hollywood public relations firm of Rogers and Cowan is still somewhat dazed by the accolade of praise given him by the London press for undertaking to "handle" the tour in this country. "The Best Thing That Has Happened to Royalty Since the Invention of the Camera" was one headline. Well, tours don't go smoothly by themselves but with a public relations expert on the spot, this one should glide.

I'm not holding my breath for Frank Sinatra and Ray Stark, the Seven Arts boss, to make another deal. The recently finished Assault on the Queen was an assault on the nerves of everyone concerned. Frankie's Marriage on the Rocks, now in release, seems to have fundered a bit. He was good in Von Ryan's Esprit, and before that, High Society, but he really does much better with his records than with his films.

Someone close to Jack Warner, the last of the Hollywood tycoons, tells me it was never in the cards for Frank Sinatra to take over the studio, in spite of the expensive offices built for him on the lot. With the banishment of Bill Orr, Jack's son-in-law, and his assistant Hugh Benson, who was there to take over if and when Warner retired. The answer seems to be that he will never retire. When Warner believes that someone has made a mess of things, rightly or wrongly, he doesn't waste time. He bounces him, and this included his son as well as his son-in-law. Jack Junior and Jack Senior have not conversed for years.

The biggest feud in Hollywood seems to be with Samantha Eggar, the delicate-looking but strong young lady from England, and writer By Bartlett who put in some work on Sam's picture with Cary Grant, Walk, Don't Run. The battles started on the Tokyo location. "She's talented," concedes Sy, but... And all his pent-up feelings are in the but. Miss Eggar has always had a mind of her own. When Willie Wyler fired her from The Collector, she decided she would get back in. And did. And that's a miracle, to make Willie change his mind.

Julie Andrews says cross her heart and hope to die if she does not return to husband Tony Walton wherever he is after she finishes her present Torn Curtain movie with Paul Newman. But not for long, of course. She has so many films and television shows to do here. I wonder whether Julie ever wonders whether it is worth it to be separated so much of the time from her husband... Shirley MacLaine gave up wondering about this years ago. She works here. Steve Parker works mostly in Japan, and they meet up when they can.

Shirley Booth is so rich from Hazel that she can afford to all. She has teeth trouble and a few other minor complaints that can make even a millionaire miserable... Shirley owns 25 per cent of the series and when it departs this year after four in the top ratings—the show fell off in its fifth and final year—Shirley will have so much money she will be able to live in Hollywood for the rest of her life without working. It took her a long time to like Hollywood; now she doesn't want to leave.

What a pleasant difference a year can make. The Brothers were paid $30,000 a week last year at the Flamingo in Vegas. When they appear at the Sahara in the same gambling double, they will get exactly double, $60,000. It's all that TV exposure. It beats oil for getting rich fast.

Stephen Boyd is back in Hollywood from Rome where he dubbed some dialogue for the star-studded cast of Poppye Are Also Flowers. Steve will be billed above Yul Brynner because the cast will be listed alphabetically. "No more costume pictures for me, ever," Steve assured me. He is ultra-modern in Joe Levine's movie, The Oscar.

JACK SMITH Scoffs at New Law

Poor Parkinson—He's Mad!

C. Northcote Parkinson, the author of Parkinson's law, has now published what he calls "Mrs. Parkinson's Law." He should have stood on his first law.

The British historian attempts to reduce to a neat law the forces that cause a housewife to come unglued during a typical morning at home alone, trying to cope.

Parkinson's hypothetical woman packs the children off to school, her husband off to work, burns the toast, lets the coffee boil over, breaks a rare piece of china, drives a pull-taker from the door with a sledge, hops in her car and, inevitably, wraps it around a tree.

Up to this point Parkinson's recreation of a typical house-

wife's morning is routine. He is even correct, I believe, in saying that at least half of his hypothetical housewife's disasters are of her own making.

She is really the victim, he says of the first law of thermodynamics: Heat is absorbed in proportion to the work done under pressure. Her remedy, he says further, lies in the second law of thermodynamics: Heat is always transferred from a body with a higher temperature to one with a lower temperature.

Thus, having blamed his hypothetical woman's morning on the first law of thermodynamics, and prescribed the second law as the cure, Parkinson then produces Mrs. Parkinson's Law.

"Work under pressure produces a heat which expands to fill the mind available, from which it will pass only into a mind that is relatively cooler."

Obviously poor Parkinson is going round in circles. He neither understands the reasons for what might be called housewife's catastrophe, nor offers the poor woman any real help.

Who is this person of relatively cooler mind, into whose mind her heat is to be passed? Her husband? The housewife next door? Mabel?

Even Parkinson admits nothing is to be gained by phoning her husband at work and telling him her troubles. The chances are the housewife next door is dealing with the same disasters. And our hypothetical housewife was driving to Mabel's house when she hit the tree. No, Parkinson's advice is that she put the day's mail aside, awaiting until she has "leisure" time to read it; that she refuse to answer the phone; let it ring; and that she take a cold tub bath, sinking down to her neck three times.

Poor Parkinson. He's mad. The woman does not breathe who could turn her back on the mail and let the telephone ring itself out. As for taking a cold bath at 9 o'clock in the morning—inconceivable, psychologically impossible.

Parkinson may understand bureaucracy. He may even understand the inscrutable Orient, on which he is said to be an expert. But he doesn't understand women.

Tories Throw Scare with Bases Loaded

Thompson 'Cutting Bennett's Throat'

Socreds Feel Heat in House Squeaker

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The Socreds Tuesday again snatched the minority government from defeat after the Conservative fielded a fantastic 97-out-of-97 to try to squeeze it out of office. It was one of the most spectacular finishes in parliamentary history.

Only four MPs were absent from the Commons for the vote on a Tory non-confidence motion that would have raised the old age pension from seventy-five dollars to one hundred dollars a month.

While barely recovered from the close vote, 134 to 126, the minority government today

looks down the barrel at another Tory non-confidence vote.

The Tories, at their caucus today, were expected to agree to move that the minority government be turned out for failing to give good clean government to Canadians.

In addition, before the throne speech debate ends on Monday, two other non-confidence motions by splinter parties are possible under the rules.

Then the Commons moves to a supply motion debate, which also gives the opposition opportunity to move non-confidence.

Last night, Socred leader Robert Thompson was defending the action of his group in saving the government in non-confidence votes.

On Friday, his group voted with the government against a

New Democrat motion that would have raised pensions. The vote: 126 to 117.

Then, the gap was nine. Last night, it was eight. The overall vote was larger. If the government had not got wind during

Death Penalty Next for Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons debate on capital punishment will be the first order of business after completion of the throne speech debate and a supply motion, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

Replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson agreed that the debate should be held without delay. It would be up to house leaders of the various parties to work out the procedure.

Gangster's Swan Song

'Moroccans Paid For Kidnapping'

PARIS (Reuters) — French gangster Georges Figon, 39, a key figure in the Meïdi Ben Barka affair, told his lawyer before he died that Moroccan authorities paid 1,000,000 francs ($275,000) for the kidnapping of the Moroccan opposition leader. It was announced Tuesday night. A communique issued by the lawyer Pierre Lemarchand, a Gaullist deputy, had disclosed this giving evidence Tuesday to the judge investigating the scandal.

Figon's body was found in his apartment last week. Police said he killed himself as they came to arrest him.

NOT SEEN SINCE

Ben Barka has not been seen since he was kidnapped on a Paris street Oct. 29 by three men—a French counter-espionage agent and two police officials.

The communique said Figon called on Lemarchand—not as his lawyer, but as a politician—to ask protection Nov. 2. Figon told him then what he knew of the affair, Lemarchand said in evidence before Judge Louis Zolinger.

KNEW NOTHING

The lawyer claimed he knew nothing of the kidnap plot before that date.

He said Figon told him Antoine Lopez, the counter-espionage agent who also was an official of Air France, had been preparing the operation against Ben Barka for several months. A first kidnap attempt failed in Cairo, but Oct. 29 Figon said he lured Ben Barka to the spot on the Left Bank where it took place, Lemarchand reported.

TOLD POLICE

At Monday's interrogation justice sources said Lemarchand told the judge he had passed on information he learned from Figon to Supt. Jean Calile of police intelligence and to Marcel Leroy, a high official in the French counter-espionage service, now suspended.

'Mistress' Testifies At Poison Trial

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Mrs. Wanda Ostby, attractive 30-year-old housewife who claims to have been Dr. Robert Boehme's mistress since 1963, testified in Judge Hardyn B. Soule's court here Tuesday the doctor told her he would "take care of" her.

Mrs. Ostby, mother of three children who is divorcing her husband, said she and Dr. Boehme had been intimate on numerous occasions.

ASSAULT CHARGE

Dr. Boehme is on trial on a first-degree assault charge, accused of attempting to kill his wife Mary, 33, while she was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital here last June 30.

The state contends the Port Orchard physician gave her an injection of poison while she was hospitalized for injuries received from a falling plank in the family boathouse.

Mrs. Ostby's testimony caused Dr. Boehme to stand and shout: "your honor, this witness is committing perjury."

Judge Soule, who had removed Mary Boehme from the courtroom for the remainder of the trial for a similar outburst, warned Boehme it is possible for the judge to expell a defendant from a case if he interferes with orderly procedure. Judge Soule who had watched her shake her head and smile wryly during McCutcheon's statement, ordered her removed.

WON FIGHT

"I have approved (your being here) up to this point. I will now exclude you as any other witness," Judge Soule said.

Earlier defence attorney Frank Peters had won a fight for the right to keep her at her husband's side throughout the trial, even though McCutcheon argued "even Perry Mason wouldn't do that."

Jet Crash Riddle 'Frozen'

CHAMONIX, France (Reuters) — Alpine rescue squads Tuesday night called off until spring their search for the bodies of 117 passengers and crew of an Air India jetliner that crashed on Mont Blanc Monday.

The decision, announced by police, represented a major setback in the search for an explanation of the plane's mysterious crash into the mountain when it should have been flying high and safe into Geneva, Switzerland, 45 miles away.

Joys of Open Road

Cer troubles spanned world Tuesday. Truck on Tennessee freeway unknowingly spilled scrap tin along highway—so 25 following cars here alone paused to fix resulting flats. Vatican City scored traffic first below, when driver of small car rammed up steps of St. Peter's Basilica to crash into pillar of world's largest church.—(AP)

UN Avoids Viet Nam

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg was reported to have told a group of congressmen Tuesday he has consulted United Nations leaders repeatedly on the possibility of Security Council intervention in the Viet Nam problem, but has found sentiment solidly against such a move.

Peace Overture Denied

CAIRO (AP)—Informed sources here said Tuesday the United States sent a new peace offer to Hanoi through the United Arab Republic and will, meanwhile, hold off bombing North Viet Nam, but the U.S. embassy denied it.

Officials in Washington expressed surprise over the report and also denied knowledge of any fresh overtures.

Chinese Rocketing Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prof. Ralph L. Powell, a specialist on China, said Tuesday that by 1970, or sooner, Peking will have developed a hydrogen bomb and a limited capability to deliver nuclear warheads by medium-range missiles.

And U.S. Preparing for It

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has described planned U.S. strategic offensive forces as far more than adequate to cope with any Soviet first strike.

The strategic missile force recommended for the 1967-71 period will provide "substantially more force than is required for an assured destruction capability against both the Soviet Union and Communist China," he said Tuesday.

Bombing Villages Part of War

CAMPBELL RIVER—"Going to war is like going to work," said Clifford Mitchell. "We started flying combat missions at 6 a.m. and continued until 7 o'clock at night."

Warrant Officer Mitchell, a U.S. Army helicopter pilot, has just completed a year of Viet Nam duty.

He is spending 45-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell, at Hill Island resort and marina 10 miles east of Campbell River. He was shot down six times. "If one of our machines went down, the others either got them out or waited till help arrived.

"The Viet Cong take few prisoners."

The 23-year-old pilot was posted with the 121 Airborne Company, based at Soc Trang, about 90 miles south of Saigon.

He piloted a Viking-type turbo-prop helicopter.

These machines, with their four-man crews, prowled the skies over jungle in groups of five.

Mr. Mitchell's group was nicknamed the Blue Diamond Devils, because of the large black and blue diamond painted on the front of each helicopter.

His last crash was from an altitude of 2,000 feet, when an anti-aircraft shell knocked off his rear motor.

"It was a controlled crash," he said.

After his companions got him out, he was sent to hospital with a minor leg injury.

He holds two Purple Hearts for wounds, the U.S. Air Medal with 23 oak leaf clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, and Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

The Cross of Gallantry was presented to him by General Khanh, former boss of South Viet Nam.

What about U.S. policy of wiping out whole villages?

"It's all part of the war," he said.

"These people shelter the Viet Cong. The peasant who works in a rice paddy during the day is the Viet Cong infiltrator who attacks villages and American installations by night."

He said the Viet Nam demonstrators in the U.S. and other countries do not "fully understand" the reasons for the war.

"Our troops would like to see the U.S. either clean up the situation or pull out."

"The demonstrators are a small minority."

"They don't have the backbone to fight in Viet Nam."

"We are there to stop the flow of Communism."

He said the war in Viet Nam is just beginning.

He is not likely to be sent back to Viet Nam for some time. He leaves soon for Fort Walters in Texas, to take up duties as a flying instructor.

Mr. Mitchell hopes to take up architecture and live and work in Canada.

Socreds Under Pressure

the day that the Tories were trying to field every member of their group and whipped in its own members, the vote could have been dangerously close.

Socred leader Thompson is feeling the pressure.

In the Commons, Tory Alvin Hamilton accused him of "cutting the throat" of Socreds. Hamilton said he had nearly 200 letters protesting his stand in the Commons.

"There is no other issue," Hamilton said. In his office, later, Mr. Thompson said he had nearly 200 letters protesting his stand in the Commons.

They called him "traitor."

UPSET INTENDED

"These votes," Mr. Thompson agreed, "were not votes for old age pensions. They were intended to upset the government and force an election."

"I believe the major issue is stable government and the people would not stand for another election."

TOTAL TURNOUT

"I voted against those who would upset the stability of parliament."

The total turnout by the Tories, he said, was just an "attempt to fly the flag" and it wouldn't be the same when parliament faced other issues.

MAXIMUM HAY

The Tories, he added, want to make the maximum political hay out of pensions.

Hamilton

Thompson

"But some of those who boo me in the Commons, thank me in private."

Mr. Thompson was asked how he would vote if the Tories move non-confidence, based on the integrity of the government.

He replied that any doubts he had about the government's "cleaning house" had been removed by . . .

● The election, in which the Canadian people returned the Liberals.

● The obviously forced resignations of cabinet ministers.

NO BLAMES

That, he said, was his position as far as the past was concerned.

He warned that his party was not giving a "blank cheque" to the Liberals, but would co-operate to make parliament work effectively.

New Democrat, who was reported ill in Toronto. One independent, J. A. Monaghan, two Liberals, Jack Roxburgh, who is ill, and George Nixon.

HAPPY WIMP

The happiest man on Parliament Hill last night was the Tory whip, Eric Winkler, who had carried all ninety-seven members for the vote.

He believed that the last time there had been a one-hundred per cent turnout for the party in a vote was when it was in government, over a nuclear issue.

HARD WORK

How did he do it last night? "Very simply," Winkler replied, "I worked like a dog."

But I wasn't sure until we called the vote."

FLU CASES

Three western MPs arrived from the west two hours before the vote.

Walter Dinnale, whose son is critically ill in Montreal, came from Montreal.

And there were a couple of bad flu cases.

MAJOR PLANK

Was there a special purpose in passing all the troops?

"This was an extremely important vote," he replied.

"This was one of our major election planks, to raise the pensions for the older people."

All the parties are caucusing here today.

THREE ISSUES

The Tories, last week, discussed three major subjects for non-confidence assaults on the government:

1. Pensions.

2. Failure to give clean, honest government.

3. Failure to protect Canada from economic policies made in the U.S.

THREE SPEECHES

"No. 2" is expected to figure in today's non-confidence motion and, in time, "No. 3" will be put to the vote, too.

The eight-day throne speech enters its fifth day today.

So far, it has produced some highly emotional pitches for pensions.

PLEDGE GIVEN

Last night, Tory Alvin Hamilton said even a pension of one hundred dollars does not reach the minimum level that is needed.

He called on all those who had given pledges to their constituents to raise pensions to vote for the motion and throw the government out of office.

IMMORTAL SOULS

"This," he said, "will happen if these men honor their pledge to the constituents and to their immortal souls."

"You do not make pledges such as this to the senior citizens of your country without fighting tooth and nail to honor them."

PENSIONS

"It is the cruelest form of chicanery if men ask people to vote for them on the basis of supporting a pension of $100 a month, come into this House and then vote against it."

He singled out a Liberal, James E. Brown of Brantford, Ont., who, he claimed, said during the election campaign:

VOTED AGAINST

"I am supporting an increase in the state rate old age pension to $100 a month."

Last night, Mr. Brown voted against the increase.

ROLL CALL

Hamilton appealed: "I am asking each honorable member who doesn't want to be called a rubber stamp and who will not betray his principles and convictions to meet the roll call up yonder."

"But their statements made in this House make it very difficult for them to meet that final roll call up yonder."

Dear Dr. Molner: I have keratitis sicca. Could you tell me something about it?—G.S.

It is irritation of the eyes due to lack of enough moisture—lack of tears to lubricate them. This may be associated with a decrease in mucous secretion elsewhere, as in the mouth and nose, (as in Sjögren's disease), and it may not be easy or possible to correct the problem.

However, the use of bland oil drops or "artificial tears" in the eyes will keep the membranes moist and comfortable.

Fountain's Variance Deliberate

It's not uneven pressure which causes the flow of water to fluctuate in the fountain in Centennial Square these days. It's that way by design.

A wind control device to govern the height to which the fountain jets rise was installed this week, and officials say it is working very well.

WORKED BY WIND

Located on the top of the adjacent parking building is a governor which is affected by wind pressure and by heat.

When the wind reaches a certain pressure, the pump which governs the flow of water to the fountain automatically cuts down or out.

Object, of course, is to prevent the water from being wind-blown outside the perimeter of the fountain and over whoever happens to be nearby.

DIVIDEND

A dividend since installation of the control is that the centre and dominant jet of water now rises, when the air is calm, 35 or 40 feet higher than the top of the tallest of the three monoliths in the centre of the fountain.

Death Decreed In Absentia

TEHRAN (AP) — Thirteen men accused of setting up a Communist party were sentenced in absentia to death by firing squad.

The Communist party is banned in Iran. A woman was sentenced in absentia to life in prison on similar charges. Women are exempt from the death penalty.

Australian Aid Spurs Protest

LONDON (Reuters) — Australian students at London University demonstrated in front of Australia House against the sending of Australian troops to Viet Nam.

They handed out the text of protest to the Australian high commissioner signed by a number of Australian professors, students, painters, composers and journalists.

'Extend Pause'

might have negotiations as a means of establishing peace in this particular area," he said.

"Whatever we may think of the course of conduct of our neighbor, the fact is that no one can sincerely suggest that the United States has not sought to carry out negotiations," he added.

LEADERS KILLED

Mr. Martin said the war must be viewed from three perspectives: the internal dissent in South Viet Nam, the outside aggression against South Viet Nam; the importance of the surrounding countries.

He said terrorist groups have continually killed the teachers, administrators, and health officials in South Viet Nam, making it difficult to establish a strong government.

"We would be entirely mistaken in regard to the Viet Cong as embodying a consensus of dissent in Viet Nam . . . Certainly there is nothing to suggest that there is any basis in the claim of the Viet Cong to be the sole legitimate representative of the people of South Viet Nam," he said.

NEW TERRORISM

Then he detailed for the first time aggression and terrorist activities in nations close to Viet Nam.

He pointed out that Laos is now "to all intents and purposes partitioned."

"The part that is under Patet Lao control is being freely used for the movement of men and materials from North to South Viet Nam. Members of the armed forces of North Viet Nam have been engaged in open attacks against the armed forces of the royal government of Laos."

"In northeastern and southern Thailand there are the beginnings of the same kind of terror which marked the first phase of insurgency in South Viet Nam."

OVERTHROW AIM

He said the "Thai patriotic front" is operating from Peking.

"It has within the past several weeks been joined by a new clandestine organization, the National Liberation League and army of Malaysia which is dedicated to the overthrow by revolutionary means of the government of Malaysia," he said.

"Are we, then, seriously to assume that all these movements are coming into being because the legitimate channels of local dissent in these countries have been closed?"

PART OF PATTERN

"Or is this part of the pattern of permanent revolution which is being propagated in some quarters?" he asked.

"Can we ignore the challenge of aggression of these Communist liberation fronts in Asia?"

Mr. Martin agreed with NDP leader Douglas that the United Nations had been "ignored" in its efforts to spark negotiations.

"It is clear that China would regard the secretary general (U Thant), I regret to say, as persona non grata," he said. He hoped that U Thant would continue to look for ways to promote negotiation.

PEACE, NOT WAR

He repeated that Canada would be prepared to participate in peacekeeping forces once a settlement had been agreed upon.

But he stressed
